DEATHS IN BIG FLOODS ALONG THE MISSISSIPPI

Many People Driven From Homes In Tennessee and Mississippi; Numbers Cling to Roofs and Trees; More Than 3,000 Face Famine

FOOD RIOTS AT SEVERAL POINTS

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 24.—Food riots broke out to-day among refugees in the flooded area of the Mississippi.

More than 3,000 marooned persons are facing famine in an inundated area sixty-five miles long by twenty miles wide.

Many for hours have been left clinging to trees and roofs, where they were found by the rapidly rising waters.

Efforts were being made to-day to bring help to the marooned persons by rowboats, motorboats and barges.

Altogether, thousands are homeless, and the death toll from drownings is mounting.

With reports coming in it is known the loss of life and property will be much greater than previously reported.

The arrival of a second cold wave has added to the suffering.

STEADILY RISING

Clarksdale, Miss., Jan. 24.—The raging Mississippi River to-day was going higher every hour, and hundreds of families in lowlands or the south were flying in terror to higher ground.

The Red Cross and other relief agencies were finding it impossible to take care of more than a small part of the sufferers. Many hundreds of men, women and children were fleeing death, floating through raging flood waters on roof tops, soaked to the skin in freezing water, and with no food. On every side the sufferers would hear pitiful cries for help.

REPORTS SALARIES TO BE RESTORED

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—Unofficial reports here say the civil servants who have been subject to a 10 per cent pay reduction since 1932, will have half the cut restored on April 1.

VICTORIA HELD UP AS MODEL

Publicity Bureau's Policy Cited As Example By Halifax Herald

The policy of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau in securing tourist business is held up as an example for Halifax in an editorial appearing in the Halifax Herald.

The editorial points out that "definite proof has been given in Victoria that money spent in promoting tourist trade through the medium of well thought out and ably presented publicity, is money well invested, is given by Victoria, B.C."

"The city on the West Coast," the editorial proceeds, maintains a live tourist publicity policy and reports that it actually gets back one dollar in revenue for every cent spent in tourist promotion."

It advises the people of Halifax in particular and Nova Scotia in general to give careful attention to the Victoria policy.

"Tourist promotion, says" says the editorial, "and the province or district that tries to economize by cutting down its tourist publicity is making a serious error in judgment. If you can get 100 to one for your money—and Victoria's experiments prove it—it certainly does not pay to be niggardly in promotion and publicity for tourists."

Prepare To Search For Missing Flier

Airplanes at Burns and Williams Lake to-day were prepared to take off when weather permitted to search for "Ginger" Coste, pilot from Atlin who is believed lost in the Interior of British Columbia.

Provincial police have received word that Gill McLaren had his machine ready at Finlay Forks but could not take off because of rain and sleet. Pilot De Pencier is ready at Quesnel with emergency rations, but is being held back for the same reason as McLaren.

In Collision Off Spain; British Battlecruiser Hood

London, Jan. 24 (Canadian Press).—A collision between the world's largest warship, the battlecruiser Hood and the battlecruiser Renown was reported to-day by the Admiralty. Both warships, the Admiralty said, received slight structural damage in the collision, which occurred yesterday during manoeuvres off the coast of Spain. The vessels later continued on to Gibraltar.

Girl Recalled As Witness At Trial Of Hauptmann

Defence Has Miss Hildegarde Alexander, Who Said Accused Shadowed "Jafsie," Brought Back to Stand

HAUPTMANN IS WITNESS

Associated Press

Flemington, N.J., Jan. 24.—The defence's opening statement this afternoon was that Bruno Richard Hauptmann was not involved in the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby, whereupon Hauptmann took the stand as the first witness of the defence.

Flemington, N.J., Jan. 24.—Ten-foot snowdrifts kept the crowd small at the Hauptmann trial to-day.

Hauptmann appeared worried as the day's session started and talked nervously with his wife.

Court attaches believed this was due to the fact that the state's chain of evidence has shaken Hauptmann's confidence. They pointed out that, guilty or innocent, the accused could never have realized the power which modern science and technology give the authorities in investigating crime.

In direct examination, Arthur Koehler, United States Department of Forestry expert, testified he had been able to trace to the Bronx the only wood used in the rails of the kidnapper's ladder. He said the kidnapping ladder could have been carried in Hauptmann's car with room to spare.

PICTURE OF AUTO

Attorney-General Wilentz offered Hauptmann's car in evidence. The defence objected hotly and finally a picture of the car was submitted and admitted as an exhibit.

Defence counsel Pope began cross-examining Koehler.

The questions first centred on Hauptmann's tools, but shifted back to the ladder which has played such an important part in the case.

Koehler said the ladder looked as if built by an unskilled workman, but he believed it might have been

Fighting Way To Bridge River

Lillooet - Lytton Road Is Cleared; Truck Loading Restricted

Fight with a situation which despite lack of information, was evidently desperate in many parts of the province, the Department of Public Works to-day was forced to disregard many of the minor inquiries for help and concentrate upon opening communication to the more seriously affected parts.

When word came through this morning that the highway between Lytton and Lillooet would be ploughed by noon, it was believed the plight of the Bridge River mining settlement would be lessened as the railway expected to have the line clear from Lillooet to Shalalth. This left only the road over Mission Mountain to be cleared.

On Vancouver Island, the main source of immediate trouble was to open up the road into Courtenay and the Comox district. A plough has left Parksville northward and a tractor is proceeding from Fanny Bay southward.

With many roads practically distinguishing, Hon. P. M. MacNamara, Minister of Public Works, to-day took steps to protect them as much as possible by ordering restrictions on heavy truck loadings.

The minister also issued orders to all departmental engineers to make a survey of damage in their districts. Nothing can be done yet to start repairs, he said.

The department was without reports from many of its offices in the interior, only communication being through provincial police wireless

Continued Rain and Thaw Increases Dangers Over Wide Area In Province

Fraser Valley Farmers Row Boats to Milk Cows; Food Shortage

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 24.—For the fourth day, British Columbia to-day remained a land across which modern transportation and communication was stopped, and where population battled snow and floods.

Even the location of some trains was not definitely known.

The rain which followed Sunday's seventeen inches of snow continued its fourth day of steady downpour, and in the lowlands of the southern coastal area the flood situation was getting worse instead of better.

STRANDED FAMILIES

Vancouver and Victoria passed through their crises within twenty-four hours or so, and are getting back to normal. But around New Westminster and to the south the country is dotted with inundated farm lands, stranded families and washed-out roads. Cattle are standing knee-deep in their stalls and their owners go in rowboats to milk them. In places, it is believed the land will not be returned to normal fertility for a quarter-century. Ice floes and minatures icebergs float down the Fraser River.

The full story of the snowbound interior and flooded coast will be slow in the telling. Its details reserved for the fireside of the years to come. Nearly everyone has a tale of distress, great or small, or humor, to tell. Incidents which ordinarily would make big stories, pass with scant notice in the general picture as people strive with remarkable heroism and good humor to make the best of things.

MORE RAIN IS PREDICTED

No Sign of Let-up Yet, Says Weather Forecasters

"The weather will remain mild with rain on the lower mainland and will become decidedly mild eastward through the Kootenays," stated F. Napier Denison, superintendent of the Victoria Meteorological Station, which forecasts the weather for British Columbia.

Mr. Denison reported the rainfall in Victoria from the starting of the deluge on Sunday morning at 8 o'clock until 8 o'clock this morning as 7.97 inches. The rainfall in Vancouver over the same period was 11.16 inches.

Mr. Denison says there is no immediate indication of the weather changing owing to the low pressure area off the coast.

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 24.—Heavy rains which have brought hardship and destruction throughout the Fraser Valley continued to-day after swamping all precipitation records into the discard. More rain was forecast.

Since the full force of the storm struck Sunday, 11.16 inches of rain has fallen, bringing the total precipitation for the month to 17.61 inches. The previous record for any full month was 16.68 inches in December, 1933.

The thermometer stood at 45 degrees to-day.

GULCH BRIDGE IS TOTAL LOSS

Increased Floods Wash Out Structure at Japan Gulch; Lights Go Out

Flood conditions in the city, returning to-day after some alleviation yesterday, were reported by city officials to be less severe than those of Tuesday.

Further damage caused by the storm included the total destruction of the city's bridge at the Japan Gulch reservoir, partially destroyed on Tuesday.

All streets in the city had been cleaned up and bridges removed from flooded areas yesterday, Alec Macdonald, city works superintendent, reported, but that work had been offset by the return of flood conditions to-day.

San Juan Avenue was drawn and other localities which were among the chief sufferers on Tuesday were not in as bad shape.

Island Highway Washed Out At Dugan's Fill, Just North Of Cobble Hill

Shawnigan Lake Families Forced to Vacate as Water Rises to Record Height

As the steady downpour of rain continued, and the heavy fall of snow melted rapidly, every low-lying area was flooded and rivers overflowed their banks to-day, causing the most serious floods Vancouver Island has ever known. There were no immediate signs of a let up, and as a dense fog settled over the island to-day, transportation hazards were doubled.

At several points on the Island Highway communication has been stopped and at least two centres on the island have been isolated. Duncan and the Kapoor Lumber Group have been cut off and at the latter point a food shortage is feared.

Deep snow was still melting in many inland towns and rushing water into up the highways and railway lines, causing heavy financial losses.

RAIL SERVICE STOPS

It was reported this afternoon that all rail and road communication would cease to most inland towns as fill on the road commenced to give in under the terrific rush of running water. The Canadian National and Bayshore and Nanaimo railway lines have been temporarily suspended between Duncan and Victoria.

Harold Rutland, general manager of the Vancouver Island Coach Lines, stated this morning he would make every effort to have a round trip made by bus to Victoria from Duncan if any of the trains were successful in reaching Duncan, from points further up Island.

A late report received by The Times this afternoon from Nanaimo said bus drivers had returned to Nanaimo and reported the roads flooded and impassable at Chemainus.

While the situation on city streets was not particularly bad, to-day floods continued in the outlying districts and several roads were closed to traffic, where the water was from one to two feet deep.

LOCAL ROADS BAD

It was not advisable for motorists to use Marine Drive in the Mount Douglas area, while Blenkinsop Road is completely flooded below the Bruce Foot Estate. On the East Saanich Road there were prohibitive of the road flooding, but none were reported. Mt. Doug. and Beaver Lakes are at the highest levels they have been in

ALASKA ROAD SURVEY URGED

Resolutions In U.S. Congress Ask President To Negotiate On B.C. Link

Associated Press

Washington, Jan. 24.—Survey of a proposed route for an international highway between the United States and Alaska is proposed in a resolution now before the Senate, which is expected to be debated soon.

Introduced yesterday by Senator C. L. McNary, Republican, Oregon, the resolution would empower the President to negotiate an agreement for the survey with Canada. The route suggested would run through British Columbia and the Yukon Territory.

The measure also would appropriate $2,000,000 to construct the portion of the highway within the territory and $100,000 for the proposed survey.

BILL IN HOUSE

A similar measure was introduced in the House by Delegate A. J. Dimond, Democrat, Alaska.

Under the McNary Bill, the survey would determine the most practicable route and the cost of the project. Previously the cost had been estimated at approximately $10,000,000, including $2,500,000 for the Alaska portion, which would connect with an existing route at the Yukon-Alaska border, and to carry on the survey and location of the route after it was approved by the President.

Its survey would be authorized for construction work until an agreement had been reached with the Dominion Government.

HOUSE MAY FALL IN SEA

Rain Eating Away Bank By Gordon Head Home of P. C. Boulton

Due to water eating away the bank, there is grave danger that a house in Gordon Head will fall into the sea, it was learned to-day.

F. C. Boulton, the present tenant of the house, which is on Ash Street, just off the Marine Drive, was alarmed to find the bank gradually disappearing yesterday. He called in both municipal and provincial officers who said there was no immediate danger but advised him to move out of the house for safety.

"There is still fifty feet between us and the edge of the bank," said Mr. Boulton this afternoon, "but if the rain continues it may topple over very quickly, so we are moving out temporarily."

None of the furniture has been moved yet, but a van is ready in case of an emergency.

The house is owned by Rev. A. O. Paterson, who is at present residing at Union Bay. It is valued at about $7,000.

Market Board For Vegetables Named

Government Authorizes Scheme to Deal With Output On Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island

With ratification by the provincial government to-day of a marketing scheme, the entire fresh vegetable industry of the lower mainland and Vancouver Island was placed under control of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Marketing Board.

The interim board named to conduct the scheme consists of Arthur Greening of Ladner as chairman, Joseph Marwell of New Westminster and A. H. Peterson of Duncan, the board representative.

It will handle the marketing of all vegetables with the exception of hothouse tomatoes and cucumbers and peas, beans and corn for canning purposes.

The tomatoes and cucumbers come under another scheme which will be ratified shortly.

In general the arrangement is for pooling returns, similarly to other agreements on marketing that have been passed.

Consolidation of the mainland and island schemes was carried out after some weeks of negotiation.

It will avoid disruption of the market by interchange of goods between areas under different control.

Potatoes will shortly be divorced from the main vegetable board, which has power to handle only the 1934 crop. By April 1 another board will be elected by the growers to deal with this commodity.

Registration of growers will start immediately. In this connection the scheme provides that growers will be classed as those owning the property on which the produce is grown or having an agreement of purchase. Licenses will be issued from public

Food Shortages Are Growing

Relief Camps and Farms in Difficulties in Fraser Valley, But No Fear of Starvaion

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 24. — Serious food shortages have developed in the upper reaches of the Fraser Valley through isolation of communities by snow and floods, but there is believed to be no danger of actual starvation.

Relief camps housing more than 500 men and some housing camps to-day were reported in difficult circumstances. Farmers and their stock, marooned in houses located in flooded fields, were without fresh food, but the majority had enough stored vegetables and canned goods to prevent hunger.

Supplies were available at Chilliwack, but they could not be moved to needy valley residents as all approaches to the district were pumped.

City Man, Returning Lady From Marooned Home, Shows True Gallantry Until Ditch Intervenes.

Sentences of the City Hall to-day reported a gallant old Sir Walter who, one night, Chris Hagan, member of the outside staff, was the central figure.

It happened when he showed the spirit of old Sir Walter Raleigh. In the first street junction of Kings Road and Shelbourne Street, Chris went to the rescue of a lady in distress.

Recovered in her home, the lady called for assistance to reach Blenkinsop city south. Chris "hoofed" through the water to the car, but, with the lady seated on the hood, he slipped and fell into the ditch. The lady, of course, did not fall with Chris slipped into an unknown ditch and the lady took a leader into the water.

Words was given, Chris will be at home to change his clothes and he expected the ditch that slipped tion has its district supply headquarters, the shortage was most apparent. One relief worker struggled through five feet of snow for thirty miles to bring word of the need. Reports from other camps and from unscoured farmers could not be obtained.

The city of Chilliwack has been without fresh meat since Monday. Farm produce was almost unobtainable to-day owing to the impassability of roads.

HOG PRICE RISES

The large centres were affected by the difficulty of obtaining farm produce, but no shortage was anticipated. Produce brokers reported eggs in Vancouver were up two cents a dozen, due to the storm situation, and they estimated egg production for the month would be down, 40 per cent from last month.

Butter and milk prices were not affected. Meat prices advanced in some retail stores two cents a pound generally.

CALLS FOR YEAST

Towns in the rural districts suffered from a shortage of yeast and consequent impossibility of baking bread. Provision made an urgent request for a yeast supply and Major D. R. McLaren planned to fly to the Okanagan town with yeast. Visibility was so bad to-day, however, such a flight was impossible.

Livestock suffered from feed shortage as pastures disappeared under snow and causing floods. Barns, chicken houses and other farm buildings collapsed in all parts of the Fraser Valley and their animal and feathered occupants were forced to shift for themselves in the open.

Farmers were generally well supplied with fuel, however, although some have been reported forced to cut wood during the storm as heavy drifting during the extreme cold used up their supplies.

GIRL RECALLED AS WITNESS AT TRIAL OF HAUPTMANN

strong enough to support a man weighing 175 pounds.

The state has intimated the belief the baby was killed when the ladder broke as the kidnapper descended from the nursery window with the child in his arms.

Hochler was excused from the stand after a few routine questions and Chief Defense Counsel E. J. Reilly asked to have Federal Agent Thomas Sisk recalled for cross-examination.

Sisk was the man who was called a liar by Hauptmann.

The Attorney-General would not agree to the defence's request.

DISPUTE TO DELAY

Then the defence asked for an opportunity to cross-examine Miss Marguerite Olga Alexander, the New York girl who testified she saw Hauptmann shadowing "Jafsie" Condon.

Again the prosecution objected. Attorney-General Wilentz said it would be unfair to all the defence to delay its case for such cross-examination.

Mr. Reilly said he wanted either Miss Alexander or Sisk as defence witnesses because that would put the defence in the position of being found by their answers to questions.

The court finally said Sisk could not be recalled for further cross-examination.

GEN. TO TESTIFY

The Judge ordered Attorney-General Wilentz to call Miss Alexander to return to court.

After the ruling Mr. Reilly asked for a recess, and the court ordered a recess taken. The recess delayed action on the expected defence motion for a direct verdict and for a mistrial.

Miss Alexander, a New York dress model, testified January 14.

PLANE EVIDENCE

In his evidence yesterday Hochler said one of the uprights of the kidnap ladder was made of a plank taken from the floor of the attic in Bruno Richard Hauptmann's home.

He said the carpenter's plane found in Hauptmann's garage fashioned the ladder. The judged this by ridges in the planing.

He said the chisel found on the Lindbergh premises with the ladder was used in making the ladder.

He testified that saw marks on the ladder corresponded to saws found in Hauptmann's tool box.

NEW YORK TIED UP BY STORM

Winter Also Clamps Down On Boston and Philadelphia

New York, Jan. 24.—New York City, Boston and Philadelphia were tied up to-day by raging storm, snow and cold.

Thousands of persons were unable to reach their offices and work in the cities.

The losses will amount to millions.

Upwards of 30,000 unemployed men were given jobs at helping to dig New York out from under the snow.

In the United States yesterday the elements, in a mood of winter fury, had taken a toll of more than eighty lives, broken midwest "low" temperature records of fifty years' standing, piled snows high in the north and east and scourged other communities with floods and landslides.

In the midwest several deaths from exposure and fires accompanied the Arctic wave. The southland was plagued by floods, as were parts of the Pacific Coast and biting winds whipped snows to a gale in the east.

New Orleans had some snow yesterday, providing an unprecedented sight for the rising generation.

The Fraser Valley, with its populous towns and rich farming country, is practically isolated, with telegraph, telephone and power lines down in wild confusion.

COLD IN NORTH

Only scraps of information come down from the north, which has experienced cold down to 50 degrees below zero, and is still in the grip of winter. Tales of distress have trickled through, and there are fears of food shortages. Generally, however, except for people caught out in the storm, it is not believed many centres will suffer deeply from hunger. Airplanes are poised at Vancouver ready to fly necessities to points which prove to be in need.

Every resource has been tried to get the news of the world and other telegraph and telephone traffic into the province. One shaky telephone line from Seattle to Victoria has been taxed. The Canadian National Telegraphs have managed to work intermittently a wire to Seattle via Victoria and Port Angeles. As much as fifteen miles of poles are reported down on the other side of the international boundary over the ordinary communications lines between here and Seattle. Crews are working valiantly to clear up the situation on the Canadian side. The Canadian Pacific Telegraphs are sending urgent messages to eastern Canadian and points right around the world, and handling all cables the same way. The matter is sent from here to Banfield, Vancouver Island, thence to Australia, and from there to London and Montreal.

TRAIN SERVICES

Canadian Pacific trains Nos. 1 and 2, due here Monday and Tuesday, respectively, were consolidated at Revelstoke and proceeded to North Bend, where they are held by slides. No. 2, eastbound, out of here Sunday, is still at Yale. No word has been received from No. 11, en route from Nelson and last reported at Brookmere. The line was reported clear to Spence's Bridge and it was believed the train had proceeded towards that point.

Canadian National Railways No. 1 westbound, held at Boothroyd, managed to proceed, but was halted by fresh slides at Hell's Gate Canyon on the Fraser River.

All westbound trains of both rail companies are being turned back at Kamloops, while eastbound trains are not leaving Vancouver.

The government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway, serving a huge mining area in the interior, is completely snowbound.

There is no prospect of any immediate return to normalcy, though it is hoped distinct improvement in both transportation and communications facilities will be shown within the next few days.

Associated Press

Seattle, Jan. 24. — Stormy weather, fickle cartographer of havoc, drew a spotty, muddy map of the Pacific northwest to-day, showing some cities menaced more seriously by floods and slides, and others saved from damage by moderating gales.

Hundreds had fled their homes as many rivers arose over their banks, but cooler weather halted the angry rise of streams at many points. Moderation of storms at Grays Harbor and cessation of record rains helped abate a dangerous flood situation on one hand, but on the other, summer weather melted snow in the foothills and made the Chehalis River rise an inch an hour.

Communications were cut in western Washington, northern Idaho and British Columbia; trains were delayed; busses and stages were halted; water ran three feet deep over roads and highways at many places; snow and earth slides blocked traffic arteries at a score of places.

All danger to shipping appeared past, after ten vessels had been damaged or sunk, the most serious instance being that of the Hokuman Maru, Japanese freighter, which apparently sank 150 miles west of Vancouver Island, after the liner President Jackson rescued her crew of forty-five.

SIX DEATHS

Cumulative deaths from weather conditions of the last week totalled six. Injuries were several score.

U.S. coast guard boats shuttled through the flooded regions of the Olympic peninsula, taking marooned families from their homes to safety. The Cutter went to Bush Bay for Mrs. S. Coy, dangerously ill in that village, which is isolated by floods and snow which blocked roads and took her to a Port Angeles hospital.

SLIDES DAMAGE MAINS

Centralia reported more than three feet of water covering the ocean beach highway between Chehalis and South Bend, with two north slides. There was another slide on the Pacific Highway west of Centralia, and water inundated the road, flooding equipment belonging to a number of dairymen.

North China Fears Japanese Advance

city to-day no dispatches from Kalgan described sudden Japanese attacks on three fortified cities in Chahar, China's northeasternmost province.

Twenty field guns, eight airplanes and armored cars, supported by infantry, participated in attacks on Tuhukou, Kuyuan and Tungchetse, cities near the boundary line separating Chahar and Jehol, the reports said.

RENEWAL FEARED

Although hostilities to-day were said to have been suspended, Chinese sources anticipated the onslaught might be renewed.

The wildest rumors flew through Peiping, throwing residents of the city into consternation, and Chinese sources expressed the opinion that events of the greatest importance were under way to the north.

In contrast with the mounted Mongols and Manchus who swept down from the plains of Mongolia in past centuries to subdue China, the new invaders, the official dispatches from Kalgan said, came from the east.

Their coming was heralded in recent announcements from Hsinking, capital of the Japanese created empire of Manchukuo, that Chinese forces must evacuate Jehol.

Simultaneously the Japanese and Manchukuan troops smashed at the three border cities, an artillery barrage preceding the onslaught of the move of armored cars and the wave of infantry that followed.

PLANES RAIN BOMBS

At nightfall Tuesday, the Kalgan advices said, the attackers withdrew. Wednesday, however, eight Japanese airplanes took up where they had left off, raining bombs into the border cities and smaller villages in the vicinity. A short time later the airplanes withdrew, but the attack was reported to have been resumed.

A cryptic message that said "Japanese troops are arriving in Kuyuan" was taken to indicate the possibility that city had fallen to the reported invaders.

ARTILLERY ATTACK

In the course of the artillery bombardment, the advices said, forty-two shells fell on Hahar territory. No figures as to the dead and wounded in the action were available in Peiping.

Chinese based their fear that hostilities would be renewed on the recent warning, issued by the Japanese garrison at Jehol City, that Chinese troops had "shown utter disregard of repeated requests that they withdraw from the western sections of Jehol province."

Japanese army headquarters at Hsinking last week announced they were mobilizing forces along the Jehol-Chahar border to expel Chinese troops reported to be operating under the orders of Gen. Sung Che-yuan, Chinese governor of Chahar, which the Japanese claim was active in Jehol.

JAPANESE CASUALTIES

Tokio, Jan. 24.—One Japanese army sergeant was killed and two officers wounded by machine gun fire from Chinese forces along the Chahar-Jehol border, Rengo (Japanese) dispatches from Hsinking said to-day. The casualties occurred, the report said, as Chinese troops resisted the advance of a Japanese column.

THIEVES ENTER NANAIMO STORE

Nanaimo, Jan. 24.—Thieves broke into Sawyer's hardware store last night and stole a shotgun valued at $18. Entry was made at the rear of the store.

Trawler and Crew Are Reported Lost

Associated Press

Grimsby, Eng., Jan. 24.—After drifting, badly damaged and helpless, in a violent gale off the coast of Iceland, the trawler Juria was believed to have gone down to-day with its crew of fourteen. The recovery of two fishing boats and two lifeboats marked "Juria" was reported in wireless messages. A party of farmers found the lifeboats washed ashore at Lerwhjkk, Iceland. In the same storm the mate of the trawler Westbank was washed overboard, while a third trawler, the Wilbach, ran ashore on the south coast of Faxa Bay.

said parts of the parking were being undermined by water.

Other west Washington roads closed to-day by water or slides included: The Waterfront road between Bellingham and Blanchard, the Lake Samish road, the Austin Pass highway, closed at Glacier, and many others.

Cathlamet, Wash., schools were closed because of high water.

Streets of Winlock and Toledo were flooded, and serious damage was done to several Seattle streets by melting snow.

RESIDENTS LEAVE HOMES

Residents fled Tuesday from the town of Marietta into Bellingham as the swollen Nooksack River went on a rampage.

Ice jams formed a continual menace to river bridges, and workmen stood by with dynamite to break them at many points.

Residents of Burns, Mine and other communities in narrow Burke Canyon, in northern Idaho were reported to be evacuating their homes as the warmer weather threatened to send mountains and avalanches down on their homes.

Reports were slow to trickle from the region as communication lines to Wallace were disrupted, and Wallace was isolated except for one telegraph line. Telephone lines, broken yesterday when ice froze on the wires, still were down to-day.

DRIVING IS DANGEROUS

Highway traffic to the region was hazardous because of numerous slides in the Fourth of July Canyon area. Train communication, however, still was being maintained.

Although smaller creeks were running bank-full throughout eastern Washington and north Idaho, dangerous floods were not reported.

Much of the snow in the lower regions was melting rapidly under temperatures that ranged as high as fifty degrees.

against $652,591,013 main and supplementary appropriations last year.

The principal increase is $4,339,460 for public works. This is almost offset by a decrease of $4,330,478 on the public debt.

Other substantial increases are: $788,000 for aviation; $650,556 for the post office department; $520,420 for railways and canals; $498,602 for trade and commerce, and $469,856 for agriculture. Outside the cut in public debt interest, the largest decreases include $2,040,294 in unemployment expenditures, $443,200 for soldier and general land settlement, $397,500 for legislation, and $340,000 in charges of management.

GULCH BRIDGE IS TOTAL LOSS

LIGHTS GO OUT

The city lighting system on Quadra Street had been thrown out of joint, the city electrician reported. More trouble was expected as the effect of water made itself felt, he said.

Much of the water trouble was attributed to frost still in the ground. The earth is unable to absorb the heavy rains.

In an effort to prevent further damage in the city's Goldstream watershed, two men were sent to Jak and Leon Lake on Tuesday. They had opened the valves and the excess water was running into Waugh Creek, City Engineer Irvin stated.

DEATHS IN BIG FLOODS ALONG THE MISSISSIPPI

Some 3,000 feet of the bank of the Pompey Canal gave way, causing hundreds of persons to flee from their homes, five members of one family were drowned.

The town of Sledge, Missouri, from which frantic calls for help came yesterday, was under six feet of water to-day.

How many have been drowned in this worst flood since 1927 it was impossible to estimate to-day. There were twenty-one known dead, and the river still was rising. Probably many bodies will be found later.

FIGHTING WAY TO BRIDGE RIVER

which was rendering yeoman service in many respects.

The police had a report from Nelson this morning that steady rains had been coming down all night from the Alberta boundary to the Coast, making the situation serious. All telephone and telegraph lines were down east and west of Nelson, and the police were assisting the railways by short wave radio in keeping track of snow ploughs and train movements.

At Mile 104, east of Nelson, a large slide occurred cutting the town off. The slide was 600 feet long and 35 feet deep. No passenger trains had arrived there since yesterday but one freight got through from the east at 8 o'clock this morning.

Vancouver was expecting trains in to-morrow morning, four days late.

An eastbound C.P.R. train which left Vancouver Sunday afternoon got as far as Three Valley, near Revelstoke, but returned to Kamloops, where it is now standing.

EVANGELIST ON WAY TO ORIENT

Aimee Semple McPherson Sails From Seattle For Japan

Associated Press

Seattle, Jan. 24.—Accompanied by two aides, Aimee Semple McPherson, Four-Square Gospel evangelist, was here to-day to have a tooth fixed and to be vaccinated before sailing for the Orient this afternoon.

She plans a four-month tour visiting missions and delivering sermons in Tientsin, Peiping, Shanghai, Canton, Hongkong, Manila, Bangkok, Darjeeling, and then to Europe for stops in Athens, Hamburg and Berlin.

Mrs. McPherson is scheduled to sail on the N.Y.K. liner Hiye Maru. With Miss Rita Hardin, a Bible student, and Sidney Correll, mission secretary.

Last time she was in the Orient, three years ago, Mrs. McPherson said to-day, she could have touched a leper with one hand and a smallpox victim with the other.

"So I'm taking no chances, but getting vaccinated," she explained.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE FAMILIES FORCED TO VACATE AS WATER RISES TO RECORD HEIGHT

years. Elk Lake is only a few feet from the road, but it was not considered likely it would reach the road bed.

Around Haslemere Lake the road resembled a swamp this morning.

Swan Lake has risen and flowed into all the adjoining low properties.

The Times this morning made a general survey of the island situation, getting in touch with its correspondents in practically every centre.

The reports follow:

DUNCAN ISOLATED

Duncan—This town is isolated on all sides by flooding rivers. Cowichan Bay has risen to such an extent that it is over the road and the Koksilah River is the highest it has ever been. There are four feet of water on the highway near the river crossing. Jaynes Sand Farm is believed to be completely inundated. The highway around Pemberton Farm is flooded and Kelvin Creek is overflowing. There has been a serious washout on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, near Kokstich. The Westholme flats are completely under water. The Cowichan River is the highest it has been in forty years.

FOOD SHORTAGE

Kapoor—The camp is completely isolated from outside communication with only sufficient bread to last the 250 residents about twenty-four hours. The Humphreys Road is impassable. Canadian National Railway trucks were reported hanging in the air, where trestles have been washed away. Telephone and telegraph wires were disrupted which six telephone poles in a row were washed out.

Genoa—The Genoa River is higher than it has been known to rise in fifty years. Two summer homes on the bank of the river, owned by Gerven Jameson and R. W. Bradley, were washed away by the current and Mr. Jameson's has not yet been found. Parts of Mr. Bradley's house were discovered on a neighbor's field. Several other homes were affected by the floods. Many have layers of sand on the floors, which the river has washed in. The river has risen twenty-five feet, which was responsible for the washing out of the Johnson suspension bridge. The highway bridge over the Genoa River is being guarded by gangs of men who fear it may be damaged by bottom of logs sweeping downstream. There is a big jam near the mouth of the river.

HOUSES FLOODED

Shawnigan Lake—Several summer homes are isolated and homes at the north end of the lake are reported flooded. The lake is higher than ever before and three feet of water is reported on the West Arm Road between the school and the village. The lake is rising rapidly after two inches of rain yesterday evening. A considerable amount of snow is melting steadily. Communication between the school and the village is only possibly by boat. Among the homes isolated are those owned by Mr. Gilfillan, Jeffrey Twigg, Mr. and Mrs. Hawksford, F. B. Richardson and George Freeman. These residents have all evacuated their premises.

MELT SNOW FOR WATER

Port Alberni—There is still a heavy layer of snow reported here and patients are being taken to the hospital on sleighs. All the sawmills have closed down, putting 500 men out of work, the majority of whom have left for Vancouver. On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday the water system in Port Alberni was shut off and residents of this community and Alberni were forced to melt snow for water. This action was also necessary in the hospital. Logging camps on the Alberni Canal are the only ones reported operating in British Columbia. Transportation service is being maintained with Nanaimo. All schools are closed.

ROADS CLEARED

Nanaimo—Snow ploughs have been successful in clearing the road as far as this centre and have moved on towards Parksville. Flood conditions are pretty well confined to basements and relief workers are being employed to clear snow from the streets. It is estimated two inches of rain fell overnight in twelve hours.

Cumberland—Tractors have been through to Cumberland and Comox Lake. They reached here at 2 o'clock this morning. There is now a one-way truck through to Comox Lake which is at the highest level on record.

RAIN IN HOUSE

Ladysmith—Heavy rains have penetrated the home of A. E. Thomas and damaged furniture. Floods are general and the school has been closed owing to the danger of the roof caving in from the weight of the snow. The roof caved in on the store shed at Crumley's Lumber Yard, doing considerable damage to stock.

ROAD WASHED OUT

Cobble Hill—This station is cut off from communication with Duncan by a slide on the Island Highway at Duncan's Hill, one mile north of Cobble Hill. This slide is fifty feet wide and ten feet deep, and it was reported a freight truck was stuck in the middle of it. All southbound traffic is being rerouted along Telegraph Road, which is not expected to hold up much longer owing to a number of dangerous slides.

There is a washout at Pemberton Meadows. The foreman of the E. & N. was reported to have been patrolling the track in a canoe.

Chemainus—From her home, isolated by water in Horseshoe Bay, Mrs. H. R. Halford, The Times correspondent, was able to give just a few brief details. More than two feet of snow is still on the ground and it is raining steadily. Mrs. Halford's home has been surrounded by water for two days. Flood conditions are getting worse, she reported. At Westholme, not far away, R. W. Devlin, general storekeeper, awoke yesterday morning to find his dog swimming around in the front room. It was found a section of the Island Highway might be washed out near Chemainus.

Crouch Bets Hat and Socks He Will Win

Reeve Makes Wagers With Opponent and Member of Audience In Saanich Election Campaign

Two wagers that he would be elected, one of a new hat with George McWilliam, Sr., an opponent, and another of a pair of socks, with E. G. Trevelyan, a member of the audience, were made by Reeve Crouch during his election campaign at Mount View High School in Ward Seven yesterday evening. The reeve made his first appearance in the campaign after being confined to his home for several days through illness. He was in a fighting mood for there were several somewhat unruly members in the audience, which totaled about 150.

Candidates in the campaign yesterday evening addressed meetings in in the school and in St. Mark's Hall, Ward Two, where there is a three-cornered contest for the council seat. In Ward Seven there is a straight two-way fight.

The Ward Seven meeting warmed up several times during the addresses by the reeve and Councillor G. S. Eden, seeking re-election. The latter was accused by E. Young at one stage of having "framed" him over some private matters concerning the councillor and Mr. Young, while Mr. Trevelyan also claimed he had been the subject of a "frame-up" instigated by the councillor.

The meeting was typical of Ward Seven in every respect, except that attendance was decreased somewhat by weather conditions.

During the question period after the reeve's talk, E. G. Trevelyan wanted to know why he had lost a week's relief after visiting the council chamber as a member of a delegation, on May 8 last.

"Because you were asked, to conduct yourself like a gentleman and you did not do it," the reeve said.

"Well, you got a little hot and I got a little hot, only you got hot first," said Mr. Trevelyan. "But was that any reason why you should take $5.00 from my wife and children?" he asked.

"If you acted like that again, I would cut another week off," said the reeve.

"And if you did, Mr. Reeve, I would turn around and knock your block off," was Mr. Trevelyan's reply, amid a roar of applause.

GLAD HE CAN SPEAK

"Although I am a little weak on my pins I thank God I am still able to speak and take all you can give me," were Reeve Crouch's opening words.

The council this year had closed the year in a manner beyond the greatest expectations.

Among the financial highlights were: An increase from 70 per cent to 81.5 per cent in tax collections; payment of the bank overdraft of $22,000; an increase of $18,000 in collections of tax arrears; reduction of $900 in interest payments, and an increase in the sinking funds of $19,000.

The reeve cheerfully noted that yesterday evening Saanich bonds were quoted higher than Victoria and Vancouver, and exemplified this as an indication of the strong financial position of the municipality.

Like other districts Saanich had been hard hit by extra social service costs. In four years $134,000 extra had been paid by the municipality. In spite of this there had been no borrowing from the government, and no bonded indebtedness created in the municipality.

Saanich had nearly the lowest taxation of any B.C. municipality, he said.

The reeve alluded to his appointment of Councillor E. C. Warren as chairman of the relief committee, and his subsequent refusal. The reeve had taken the job himself and with the year over he announced he had no apologies to make to either the relief men or the taxpayers.

The reeve announced he was definitely opposed to higher taxes, and was thinking along the line of lowering them if social service costs could be reverted to the government.

The municipality had been successful during the year in laying the mains to the Observatory at a cost of $17,000, which had not cost Saanich a cent. These mains would become the property of Saanich and were a $17,000 asset.

Referring "in a friendly manner" to Mr. McWilliam's platform of throwing back the relief and social services to the government, the reeve said "that has been a plank in the platform of every reeve and councillor" in Canada for the last four years. He predicted the efforts would get no farther than those of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

In regard to his proposed trip to the conference at Calgary, the reeve assured he was not anticipating with any great zeal going to Calgary where it was 40 below zero.

"You better stay at home, reeve," interjected E. G. Trevelyan.

GOVERNMENT HAS UPPER HAND

The government always had the upper hand if there should be any attempt to evade payment of social service costs and refuse to budget for relief, he said. Provincial authorities could always credit any grants forthcoming to the municipalities.

The reeve then launched into a little past history of the Saanich council to recall occasions when his opponent, Mr. McWilliams had voted in 1923 to raise Reeve Watson's indemnity from $600 to $800, and a month later in favor of a motion to cut wages 20 per cent; still later in favor of $1,000 for a tourist association and $200 for delegates to the Esquimalt drydock.

The reeve said he was never more confident of election. "I have served you for eight years," the reeve started to say.

"Too long" shouted Mr. Trevelyan.

"Well, I'll bet you I'll be back there for the next two years, Mr. Trevelyan," answered the reeve, who was in particularly good form.

"I'll take you," said Mr. Trevelyan.

"Put it up" called back the reeve feeling for his wallet and pointing to the table on the platform.

"All right, I'll bet you a pair of socks," said Mr. Trevelyan.

The reeve was questioned at length concerning his support of the chief of police's action in prosecuting W. B. White and P. D. Wilson for obstructing a police officer.

George McWilliam Sr., candidate for reeveship, noted the appearance of the reeve had enlivened the campaign. To date he had made no personal references in the campaign, but he was forced to defend himself. He explained at the time he had voted for Reeve Watson's increase the reeve had been extensively engaged in surveying the Gordon Head water scheme and as a councillor he had felt the reeve was entitled to more.

"The reeve says I cannot get these things that I advocate if I am elected, and I am going to be elected," said the speaker.

"I'll bet you a new hat you're not," called Reeve Crouch from the front row, amid a burst of laughter.

"The bet's on," shouted back Mr. McWilliams above the laughter of the crowd.

Settling down to the more serious aspect of his platform, the candidate stated he felt the Saanich financial statement was only a painted picture of non-prosperity, when there were men on relief as there were to-day.

He reiterated his stand for more permanent public works, as he felt relief moneys had been wasted in the last four years.

Revision of assessment rolls was favored by Mr. McWilliams, who felt no consideration was given annual devaluations.

Announcing his plan for economy, Mr. McWilliams stated it was "time we cut things to the bone to live during these lean years." He intended to effect economies in regard to car allowances for municipal employees.

Reeve Crouch asked Mr. McWilliams what he would do if the social services were thrown back upon the government and the government told back school grants to pay for them.

The candidate said he would seek an that could be considered by the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

JOHN REID

John Reid, candidate for reeve, reiterated his beliefs that all men were created equal and had certain rights.

In the next few years the welfare of the people would be the most important problem which governments would face, he thought. Although future action on public works in the country would be determined after the next federal election, there must be a change in the capitalistic system to bring to the people their proper rights, he said.

Mr. Reid referred to his scheme for a not too costly sewerage system for the municipality in the inner wards. In this way a part of relief money could be used and the remainder would be constructed as a local improvement.

"In this way we might be able to get a little more relief for those on relief and the taxpayers would be getting more from the work. As it is at present the money has been wasted on the side of the roads for years," he said. "It would also help the real estate business, as more people would come out here and build."

As compensation for the outer wards, they would be allowed waterworks profits to expend on extension of water mains.

Mr. Reid was against the municipal clerk holding the position of assessor and fire marshal. He advocated a neutral assessor. He supported restoration of the library service. If necessary he would also be in favor of a plebiscite on the question of having provincial police in the municipality. He was in favor of income tax being increased on "the people who make all the money."

Mr. Reid was asked if he would introduce the sewerage system as a relief measure, and answered he would pay union wages.

"Would you receive delegations and try and iron out their grievances with them?" asked E. G. Trevelyan.

"I would favor having two representatives of the relief workers sitting on the relief committee, and I certainly would try and assist them," was the answer.

COUNCILLOR EDEN

Councillor G. S. Eden paid tribute to the taxpayers for their response in paying 2 per cent more in current taxes than the council budgeted for, and $18,000 more than budgeted for in tax arrears.

The relief increase which the government placed on Saanich would necessitate a raise of two mills in the tax rate. The speaker's attitude on relief was that the government should take it from the municipalities. Relief had eaten into municipal funds to such an extent that there was little left for improvements in the wards.

The only course the council had was to refuse to budget for relief and have the provincial government take it up with the Dominion authorities.

"There has been a lot of talk about sewers, sidewalks and other improvements but as has been pointed out these can only come through local improvement by-laws," he said. It was necessary to be "mighty careful how you go about local improvement by-laws and make sure your properties won't revert and create a critical situation," he said.

Councillor Eden reviewed the question of the library service in the municipality. It was costing Saanich about $1,500 a year. When the library board had decided that one card was not to be sufficient and that individual members of a family each had to have a card, it appeared the service was going to cost about $4,000, instead of $1,500.

The board had refused to abide by the verdict of an arbitrary body, and for this reason Saanich had closed the service since there was no means of checking the library lists. He did not think it would be possible to secure the service again unless the library board would arbitrate.

Mr. Trevelyan asked if Mr. Eden was in favor of letting sixty-year-old men on relief do light jobs which young men were holding. He said this was being done.

One man asked if Saanich had balanced the budget this year, and on being told it had, he asked if the Queenswood subdivision had reverted to the municipality. The reply was it would do so next year.

"Then why has that subdivision been shown as a $16,000 asset?" was the question.

Mr. Eden said he did not know if this had been the case, as he had not seen the balance sheet.

TRUSTEE TOMES

Trustee William Tomes, seeking re-election, said the board had done all it could do to keep down the costs so as to not interfere with efficiency.

The board spent over $10,000 on the McKenzie Avenue School and despite all criticism, the building was an asset to the district, he said.

Trustee Tomes dealt chiefly with matters he had discussed earlier in the campaign.

CAPTAIN GRAY

Captain Nathaniel Gray of Brentwood, making his first appearance in the election, could only see one real issue before the electorate in regard to the board elections. The people must elect the two men who they thought were most ably suited for the work, but must remember that the trustees' activities were limited by the School Act.

One point which came within the board's scope was the selection of teachers, and he maintained no teacher should be selected without an interview with the board.

Dealing with financial end of the work, he pointed out the council or the electorate had the final say on any capital expenditure.

Capt. Gray felt all candidates for the board possessed the necessary qualifications, but it was up to the people to be the final judges.

P. D. WILSON

"We have three great statesmen in Canada to-day, Premier Bennett, Premier Pattullo and Reeve Crouch, and our condition to-day is proof of it," said Price D. Wilson, Communist candidate for the reeveship.

Mr. Wilson again dealt with the Communistic description of the manner in which the capitalist class split tactics and kept different sections in antagonistic moods towards each other. He would not say members of the Saanich Council were capitalists, "but," he said, "a lot of them are supporters of capitalists, especially your reeve."

W. B. WHITE

W. B. White, candidate for the council, took the floor at 11.30 o'clock. He promised to make the shortest speech of the evening.

Mr. White advocated low cost sidewalks for Ward Seven. Councillor Warren had installed a mile of this type of sidewalk and Mr. White thought the project had been given a certain amount of derision in Ward Seven.

Even if the sidewalks could not be built this year, the foundations might be laid and they might be completed next year. Mr. White assured he would work in the best interests of the people if elected.

WILLIAM INGLIS

William Inglis, school board candidate, took the floor at 11.40 o'clock, and the crowd had dwindled to twenty-one. He announced his platform in favor of the new Cadboro Bay school and the welfare of the children.

He was against homework, and thought corporal punishment should be abolished.

L. H. PARSMORE

Leslie H. Parsmore, school trustee candidate, announced there would be a Ward Seven meeting on Friday night, at which he would speak. The meeting adjourned at 11.50 o'clock, and he did not wish to keep the audience any longer.

COUNCILLOR WARREN

At Ward Two there were several lively tilts between Councillor E. C. Warren, seeking re-election, and Ex-councillor Dennis Hoare, who was defeating by Councillor Warren last year over the municipal relief issue.

Councillor Warren submitted his report for the year, dealing with relief figures. He announced his stand in favor of having the province take over relief administration, and felt sooner or later the issue would be forced on the government.

He was asked by John Watson, candidate for council, why he had not accepted the chairmanship of the relief committee at the beginning of the year after winning the election on this issue. The question was not answered.

DENNIS HOARE

Dennis Hoare charged that he had been defeated by unfair criticism last year and asked Councillor Warren to remove the stain on his character. He sought election on his three-year record on the council. He felt if the provincial government stepped in to take over relief it would cost Saanich more in the end and was opposed to such a move. Councillor Warren denied he had made the charges supported again the former incumbent.

John Watson, seeking the second seat, congratulated the council on its improvement of drainage ditches. He also thought Saanich would benefit from Mayor Leaning's tourist campaign, which he supported.

In the event of villages coming, good roads should be provided for them and a scheme for hard-surfacing the roads would provide necessary employment, he said. He advocated extension of water mains and improvements of parks and auto camps.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR SCHOOLS

New Lighting System For Quadra and Roofing For High Auditorium

Possibility of a new lighting system for the darker rooms of Quadra Street School, paid for jointly by the parent-teacher association of that district and the city school board, were seen at yesterday evening's meeting of the local board.

V. Rolfe, delegate from the association, stated it had raised $75 towards the installation of new lights in four rooms and asked that the board provide an equal amount to carry on the $150 project.

The new system was wanted as soon as possible in order that it might be of benefit to the children during the dark months, he said.

Trustee P. R. George, a member of the association, also spoke for the work and paid a tribute to installations of that nature made elsewhere in the school by Mr. Rolfe. The matter was referred to the building and grounds committee for action.

On the recommendation of Trustee George, the board decided to call for tenders for putting a new roofing on the Victoria High School auditorium at a cost in the neighborhood of $300. Trustee Kenneth Ferguson suggested interior work be done on the auditorium as soon as possible.

Tenders from Evans, Coleman & Evans for insulating Sir James Douglas, South Park and Beacon Hill schools were tabled for the time being.

The same action was taken with a letter from Fire Chief Alex Munroe, regarding the closing of North Ward auditorium.

RECORD VERSUS PROMISES

MR. MACKENZIE KING SHOWED COMMendable restraint in his speech on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. But he naturally found it quite easy to remind the Prime Minister that his vague promises of reform by a Conservative government already, for the most part, either had been put into operation or were part of the policy of the Liberal party.

Alluding to what Mr. Bennett termed the "keystone of the capitalistic arch"—the profit system—the leader of the opposition told the House that the Liberal party for long had advocated the establishment of a properly-constituted bank under the control of Parliament, which, of course, means control by the people of the country. Mr. Bennett and his cabinet, however, were so determined that the control of the institution should be in the hands of private interests that the Liberal party's policy should be ditched, so the so-called Central Bank will drop into the hands of a private corporation.

The public should understand that the new financial banking structure will not give Parliament control over credit and currency, over the gold reserve, for example, for these now will be turned over to this newly-constituted private company. "No programme of planned economy can succeed," Mr. King warned the House, "that is not based on intelligent public control of currency and credit."

Although he was convinced Mr. Bennett's social reform policies were merely an election scheme, Mr. King said he had not expected the Prime Minister to go as far as he had when he spoke at Montreal and said, "If you do not want minimum wages and maximum hours, vote for King and Taschereau."

He reminded the House that it was the Liberal party which established the Department of Labor, with himself as the first minister, and it fell to his lot to draft the policy which the department still is following.

The leader of the opposition got no contradiction from the Prime Minister when he said that practically all the measures pertaining to the Labor Department had been enacted under Liberal governments, the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, the Combines Investigation Act and the Fair Wages and Eight-hour Day Act. As early as 1898 he himself had made a report which led to the passing by the House of Commons of a resolution respecting fair wages on government contracts.

The Government Annuities Act was put through Parliament by a Liberal government; the Technical Education Act was based on the investigation which Mr. King conducted when he occupied the position of Minister of Labor. Here is part of the impartial Canadian Press dispatch of Mr. Mackenzie King's speech:

> Again, the Liberal government which he had led was responsible for the Old Age Pensions Act, Mr. King insisted. He had always felt the first steps in social legislation should be in the line of assistance to the old and infirm. But, he warned, social legislation of any kind was of little use unless a government was equipped with the money to carry it out.
> Consequently, when his government attained power in 1921, it had immediately taken steps to develop trade, to make the country prosperous, so there would be money available and work for all.
> "What good are minimum wages, shorter hours and similar things if men have no work?" asked the opposition leader. How could social services be developed, social legislation implemented, if the funds to do so were lacking?
> So, when his government attained power in 1921, the major effort at first was to "get rid of the deficits upon deficits" left by the former administration. This had been done. Budgets were balanced until "for seven years we had surpluses and not deficits." Taxation had been reduced. The sales tax was cut from 6 to 1 per cent.
> And what had happened to the Old Age Pensions Act when first introduced by a Liberal government in the House of Commons? The act had been defeated by the Conservative majority in the upper chamber. That did not look very bright for the social legislation now proposed by the Prime Minister in the throne speech.
> Eventually the Old Age Pensions Act had been put through, but the first time it had been wrecked on the Senate Conservative majority.

Mr. Mackenzie King has told the Prime Minister that the party he leads in opposition in the House of Commons will study all the reforms—aged in the wood as far as the Liberal party is concerned—on their merits. The opposition leader, of course, wants more than phrases or promises such as were made in 1930, without performance, and so do the people of Canada.

ADVERTISING VICTORIA

IN HIS REPLY, PRINTED ELSEWHERE, to The Times editorial comment on his criticism of the city's tourist advertising methods, made in his speech at Friday's luncheon, Mr. W. A. McKenzie says that an inaccurate report of what he said in this newspaper was the basis of a "personal attack" upon him. The Times report, he said, made him say that Tacoma business men did not know there was a road out of Victoria, whereas what he did say was that while the caravan tour to Hazelton was being discussed Tacoma business men did not know it was possible to drive north from Vancouver.

The Times did not report Mr. McKenzie as saying Tacoma business men did not know there was a road out of Victoria, or anything like it. It reported him as saying that "methods of advertising Vancouver Island had not been just what they should have been, giving instances of persons living just south of Seattle who had not known it was possible to drive to Victoria."

The Colonist, reporting this aspect of his address more briefly, attributed to him the remark, "For many years we have spent substantial sums in advertising the tourist attractions of this city. Have our past methods been successful?" Both reports were condensed but there can be no question that Mr. McKenzie questioned the advertising methods employed by this city, and his statement in today's Times furnishes abundant corroboration on this point. While admitting that there has been plenty of advertising in California and elsewhere on the continent, he says British Columbia has had little or none in Washington or Oregon. He cites a rather weird instance of a service station man at Medford, Oregon, inquiring if Victoria was a city or an island.

Mr. McKenzie's statement that there has been little or no advertising of British Columbia in Washington or Oregon shows that he is still determined invincibly to ignore the facts, which he could have obtained from anybody at all familiar with the record. Ten minutes' conversation with Mayor Leeming would have enlightened him. So would a brief telephone inquiry of the Publicity Bureau. From these he would have learned so much that a considerable part of his letter would have remained unwritten.

The Mayor would have told him that there is not a folder or map issued by the publicity associations of the two adjoining states which does not either carry an advertisement of this city or show its precise situation together with the ferry services operating between here and the mainland. He would have been told about the motor tours conducted by the Seattle newspapers on this island, every one of which was followed by illustrated full-page descriptions in those widely-circulated publications. He would have been advised that this city during the last five years has consistently maintained contact men at Blaine, Portland, Spokane, Grants Pass, and Vancouver, who in one year alone distributed many thousand pieces of literature.

He would have found out, also, that Victoria has a better system of billboard advertising in the two states than any other community; that contact is being made with virtually every hotel; that the radio stations KOMO and KOL, every year allow the Victoria Publicity Bureau to broadcast advertising of this city, over one of which Mr. Warren spoke at considerable length only last week; that Mayor Leeming, Mr. Anscomb and Mr. Harold Husband have made frequent trips to all the principal points in Washington and Oregon, addressing various organizations and associations, the addresses being adequately reported in the press; that innumerable pictures of Victoria have been exhibited throughout the two states, while thousands of personally directed copies of publicity literature have been sent there. Beyond all these there is scarcely a month in which personal contact is not maintained between the Victoria Bureau and all important points as far as Grants Pass, while Mr. Frank Giolma has contributed many articles to all kinds of publications.

This record covers only some of the activities of the Publicity Bureau here; it does not include the operations of the co-operative Puget Sounder's organization, or the transportation companies, on water and land, which by arrangement now undertake direct newspaper advertising, or the hotel publicity. Nor does it deal with the operations of the Vancouver Publicity Bureau which, during the last five years has expended fifteen thousand dollars in straight newspaper advertising in Washington and Oregon and for which, as Mr. McKenzie could have ascertained easily enough, provision is made in its annual budget. The service station man at Medford who inquired if Victoria was an island or a city either never could have scanned a road map, or seen a billboard sign, or he must have been having a little fun at Mr. McKenzie's expense. If there is any service station man on the Pacific Highway, which runs through Medford, who really does not know that this road leads into British Columbia he must be a freak indeed.

As for the general public in the two states it has been deluged with publicity information concerning this province, particularly this city, and we suggest that before making a statement so absurd as that "British Columbia has had little or no advertising in Washington and Oregon" our correspondent should find out something about the subject. If he did not care to inquire of the Mayor or the officers of the Publicity Bureau, he could have got in touch with the transportation companies, the hotels, the automobile associations or the other publicity agencies maintained by the various centres across the line.

VAGUE GENERALITIES

ACCORDING TO PRIME MINISTER Bennett the number of unemployed in Canada "is less than 500,000, perhaps 400,000."

The Premier said in the House yesterday that at the peak of the depression the total was 750,000, and then he went on to claim that the reduction was something of which Canada should be proud.

This is all very well; but in the summer of 1930 this same Mr. Bennett told the people of Canada that he would end unemployment or "perish in the attempt." It will be remembered that there were then about 117,000 out of work.

Not only did Mr. Bennett not end unemployment; he pursued fiscal policies which aggravated it. Only a few months ago we were told by one of the government leader's ministers that more than a million Canadians were on relief in one form or another.

The "perhaps 400,000" is typical of the Prime Minister's vague generalities.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

BURN THE TOY GUNS
The St. Thomas Times-Journal

A good bonfire for toy guns might save future trouble in Ontario. And while it is being held, it might also be beneficial if most of the people who are now registering their guns with the police added theirs to the pile.

VALUES
The Ottawa Journal

The way of a dog with his master is beyond understanding. The more one punishes over it the more one is satisfied that human beings are much better than they are said to be—otherwise, dogs wouldn't live for them and die for them. Taken at the value his dog puts upon him, any man is a demi-god—though his world hands him a flop and a failure.

A THOUGHT

Then shalt thou be hid from the scourge of the tongue: neither shalt thou be afraid of destruction when it cometh.—Job v 21.

We are ashamed of our fear; for we know that a righteous man would not suspect danger nor incur any. Wherever a man feels fear, there is an attempt.—Plutarch.

Loose Ends

One meets an old friend and remembers former days — when things were simpler and better—down at the City Hall—and elsewhere—and takes time to ponder the real issues of the times.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

SAD MEMORIES

THE OTHER DAY, while I was wandering about the Parliament Buildings, I bumped head-on into a delegation of the Victoria City Council which had come to ask the government to do something for the civic taxpayers, as delegations have been asking year after year, as long as one can remember, with precisely the same results.

This reflection, as one observed the shining, hopeful faces of our city fathers, was melancholy enough, for it was clear that they would get nothing for their trouble and might as well have stayed on the other side of the Causeway—this reflection was melancholy enough, but I felt still more gloomy when I happened to run into my good old friend, Bob Dewar, whose membership in the City Council these untold years is one of the few visible evidences of the electors' good sense.

It was melancholy to bump into Bob, because it recalled another and a better era long ago—about fifteen years ago, as closely as I can remember—when things at the City Hall were less important and far jollier. Ah! said Bob and I together, those were the days! No coming to the government for rescue then—or if they did, the aldermen of Victoria only did it as a matter of form and custom, because we were quite vulgarly well off and prosperous then. We learned talk of debts and deficits and scientific taxation and the imminent peril of collapse. Why, bless you, when I was a cub reporter covering the City Hall, I don't believe half the council knew what the sinking fund was, or cared. That was the Golden Age.

LEISURE

WE HAD TIME then for things that mattered. We could afford to spend Monday evenings discussing things that appealed not merely to men's sense of arithmetic and economics and finance, but to things that appealed to their sense of humor, which is much more important. We could and did take up weeks of charming discussion over a by-law to regulate the operation of roller skates by children on the streets—an issue which split the council into two warring factions for nearly a year and engendered a good deal of bad blood among the advocates of roller skates and the enemies of roller skates. The roller skate party finally won a stirring victory.

We could consider at length and debate all the pros and cons of a plan to build a great publicly-owned and socialistic leather tannery to use the skins of dogs captured in the city pound—a project which defeated one mayor and four aldermen at the ensuing election.

GRAVE SCANDAL

WE COULD devote our entire genius for several months to an industrial project which called for the manufacture of a potent beverage out of holly leaves, and which ruined its sponsor at the next election because the prohibitionists of the day suspected that the product would be intoxicating. And I think it proper to confess at this late date, a sort of death-bed confession wrung from the heart before it is too late, that I was one of two miscreants who concocted a lengthy and violently-worded protest against the proposed hollyginduatry from the North Saanich Temperance League, a body invented conveniently for the purpose over an innocent cup of coffee late one night which used to be a hot bed of higher political conspiracy of that sort. Our protest killed a budding industry dead. After that no alderman, sensitive to the prohibition vote, would go near a holly bush.

We could spend several months arguing on a by-law regulating the sanitary inspection of meat on which, as I recall, the council was evenly divided as to whether the inspection should include livers and lights or only livers. So far as I can remember, the livers won out in the end, after a fierce battle which rocked the commonwealth and engendered a good deal of bitter feeling throughout the community. And the thing was not finally settled until the leader of the livers had charged categorically that the leader of the lights, while engaged in the butcher business years before, had sold lights for livers or vice versa. It was a scandalous charge and shocked the voters very severely. The lights never got over it. They went out at the next election.

We could debate, with the quiet wisdom of philosophers discussing the true inwardness of life, the grave question whether the window boxes of the City Hall should be colored cream or green and also whether they should be filled with red geraniums or pink geraniums. The pink won out by a close vote.

And if we could think of nothing else to talk about, there was always the Johnson Street Bridge. Such a generation of sophisticates and pagans and civic infidels has grown up since then that I don't suppose the mention of the Johnson Street Bridge will bring a tear to the eye of a single reader of this column tonight. It is a base age.

GREAT MOMENTS

AH, THE endless years of argument and excitement, over the Johnson Street Bridge! The hope and despair! The wave of civic pride when, at last, the great project was started! The assurance from the best civic authorities that the bridge would make Johnson Street another Fifth Avenue for grandeur and activity! Aye, such was our innocence of the slavish science of finance in those times, that the City Council had it all figured out that the Johnson Street Bridge would pay for itself and cost the taxpayers nothing by establishing a veritable volcano of new tax-paying industries in the old Songhees Reserve!

Ah, yes, that, as Bob and I agreed, was the Golden Age, the age of innocence, of virtue, of true rustic delight. Finances and deficits and sinking funds and such dull things seemed to look after themselves well enough, in our well-ordered world. They are matters for slaves and huckasters anyway. We could afford in those days to spend our time on the questions worthy of free men.

REAL THINGS

IT HAS always been my theory that roller skates, dogs in the pound, potent beverages from holly or other sources and things of that sort were the natural subjects of man's interest. They concern life and actuality. You can get hold of them and understand them. You can get excited over them. But your modern government is so confused with the higher economics and the complications of finance, most of it quite insane, that it never has time to get down to life at all. Closer to life, closer to the heart of things than we shall ever be again, I suppose, were the deliberations of the City Council in the Golden Age.

Now you never hear of roller skates in the council. No one talks about dogs in the pound and the possibility of tanning their hides. I dare say Bob and I are the only ones who even remember the grave scandal of the holly cocktails. Instead, the City Council, from what I can gather, is grappling with the depression, with refunding, with the planned economy, with the new economics—all of them matters quite alien to men's nature—malignant growths on the body politic, the heaped-up, crushing impediments of a civilization gone mad. It was better, as Bob and I agreed, before we got civilized.

"A LITTLE BIT OF OLD ENGLAND"

To the Editor: — In your editorial columns of The Times of the 22nd, I would like to draw attention to the unfair comparison of cities in the Old Country with Victoria, B.C. One would not compare a seaport resort with industrial towns, for instance. It is only fair to compare Victoria with seaside resorts like Brighton, Bournemouth, Southsea, Torquay and, least but not last, Blackpool, the working man's holiday resort. Your article gives one the impression that England has no beauty resorts. Go and travel. That will give you an education pretty soon, that the American continent is not the only place in the world.

England is in the happy position to have industries and beauty spots, and you do not find them both together.

A LOCAL DISASTER

To the Editor:—The good people of Greater Victoria have always been quick to respond to a request for financial assistance to any Canadian or foreign "disaster," either of fire, flood, famine or sickness.

Is it not our obligation to stand by our own citizens also, when disaster by "flood" is a reality right now?

Apparently hundreds of homes will be unfit for comfortable habitation after the present almost unprecedented deluge of snow and rain. Cellars will need to be pumped out, foundations renewed. Carpentry, plumbing, painting will all need attention; also the damage to household and personal effects will have to be considered.

Would it not be a good idea if one of the service clubs started a fund through the press for the deserving of these stricken families, which would also give needed employment to a large number of working people, especially in the building trades. The writer would be glad to subscribe to that fund.

BEAUTIFYING VICTORIA

To the Editor:—On behalf of thousands of users of the beaches along the coastline of Esquimalt, Victoria and Oak Bay I ask that the leaders of the new movement to attract tourists to our naturally beautiful capital city first direct their energy to the construction of an effective and economical sanitary garbage destructor or incinerator. After investigation of the history of this subject I have found that it has been under consideration in the city for at least forty years. It appears to many residents that the present way of getting rid of the garbage by dumping it by the scoowload into the sea is far too primitive for the prestige and credit of the capital city of the Pacific province of Canada. Even in the case of a mining, a construction or a lumber camp in these days, the provincial police have authority to insist that all refuse and garbage is burnt and not dumped, much less emptied into a river.

During the forty years which this subject of a city incinerator (or a commercial scheme) has been under the serious consideration of the mayor and council for the time being, and the various health departments (municipal and provincial) concerned, I am sure that many files have been built up and much data acquired. It is certain that many improvements have been introduced in the treatment of the variety of substances to be found in garbage containers. Some housewives assist by burning the great proportion of refuse of vegetables, fish, meat, etc. I understand that all cans used now are merely pressed and that little or no solder is used, hence they could be easily cleaned by heat and then pressed into solid slabs for shipment to a copper smelter. The other main produce would be ashes or clinkers, which could be used for several purposes, and at least it would not attract vermin to the dump nor would it force householders to shut their windows to keep out the awful smell.

RAIN

To the Editor:—We have all been very much interested in the abnormal weather conditions of the last week. But many of your readers, the writer among them, have been somewhat puzzled by your report of the 22nd inst., in which you state that 3.62 inches of rain fell in six hours. Surely we are not expected to believe this! If we are, then we take the Pacific Northwest championship, having Vancouver and even Ecoquiam and Aberdeen beat to a frazzle.

In the same issue of The Times you report the heaviest rainfall in the history of Vancouver, viz., 3.78 inches in twenty-four hours.

We are very much in doubt about being able to beat Vancouver by such a large margin. Perhaps your weather expert can give an explanation.

AARON PARFITT.
1421 Grant Street.

Editor's Note—The statement that 3.62 inches of rain fell in six hours was incorrect in respect to the time, which should have been stated to be twenty-four hours.

REALITY VS. THEORISM

To the Editor:—In view of the great volume of the correspondence regarding the C.C.F., which is regaling the Victorians these days, I am reluctant to have to apply to join the circus, but a worthy gentleman in the city is apparently bubbling over with glee because in his estimation I have "exposed the C.C.F. as a reformist outfit," and in justice to the C.C.F. and to myself I feel I must correct such pleasant delusions.

I said at Royal Oak that if the granting of a certain amount of compensation would bring the co-operative commonwealth one day nearer then it would be to our own advantage to give way on our principles to that extent, which is precisely the stand taken in the C.C.F. manifesto. That manifesto will no doubt in "C. L.'s" eyes be something like a red rag to a bull, since it puts the establishment of the commonwealth as the earliest opportunity as the prime necessity and is drawn up to that practical end.

"C. L.," having a good job, will not understand that point of view. But the commonwealth is not going to be brought into existence by the abstract, philosophical, Utopian theories of the armchair critics sitting well fed and contented in their comfortable homes, but by those who are facing practical realities.

The SUPREME GOODNESS that Quality GIVES

Oak Bay Will Pay Full Debt Charges

Finances Are Sound and Municipality Will Not Default or Refund, Says Reeve R. W. Mayhew

The municipality of Oak Bay is still able to pay both interest and principal on its debts and will not seek to have its debt charges reduced by refunding, declared Reeve Robert W. Mayhew, speaking at a public meeting there yesterday evening.

The reeve claimed talk of default as dishonest. If Canada was to go forward, it must be by meeting and overcoming her obstacles with honour. To maintain her place and dignity in the world she must pay her just, moral and legal bills, and no government should allow any section to get into debt so far that it could not pay its way out; or if in debt should not be allowed to default and bring dishonour on other sections.

He discussed the whole situation at length, declaring: "Some municipalities have made new arrangements with their bondholders. Others are contemplating it. At least, they have so stated in public addresses. They claim that they cannot continue to pay bond interest at its present rate. To some extreme cases I take no exception, as there are always circumstances which have to be taken into consideration. But when cities show every sign of prosperity with population increasing, with business expanding, with many people living in them in extravagant luxury, enabled to spend millions on pleasure, I cannot see how the authorities can declare these cities broke and look for a new deal from their bondholders. With these authorities I cannot agree.

"Nor can I agree with that part of a government policy which infers: If you can make a better deal with your bondholders, whether you are justified or not, we will give you our blessing.

"I am not foolish enough to say that we should stick to all our old ways of doing business, either as individuals or government. Up to date, a large part of our modern world has made changes. Some in the extreme, and some only moderately, but changes, nevertheless, and we must make some changes also. There is a natural evolution for us, or possibly a worse condition will arise, that of revolution.

SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT

"I see no splendid signs for improvement in the recent speeches of Premier Bennett. Social legislation to help the masses is necessary. A certain amount of control of business, in my opinion, is desirable. Unfortunately, millions, billions of labor are highly commendable. It is necessary that we should have love and politics forces to prevent our living and our property. It is equally important to have love and politic forces to prohibit the businessman from getting the lives out of our people in workshops, or stealing our money through stock manipulation of various kinds. But all this is quite a different subject.

"Moreover, I do think that the present is a good time for two great men, like Premier Bennett and the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, to quit trying to destroy each other, and the country with them, but like the patriots that both claim to be, to work for Canada first, in a united and co-operative fashion. What a fine chance then is for the leader of the opposition to be a good sport and say to Mr. Bennett, 'You lick me in it on the start, but I will fight you the next election on the national platform. If I am beaten, I shall be with you in carrying out that platform. And I challenge you to give me the same undertaking, if I should win.'

"To consider the question of bonds and interest rates, in the light of recent statements, one must first answer the question: Who owns the bonds and to whom is the interest paid? Directly, the bonds are held by insurance companies, trust companies, cities, municipalities and governments themselves, with less than 20 per cent in the hands of the private individual, or so-called capitalist class. This 20 per cent is held by these different organizations or institutions for your benefit.

AFFECTS INSURANCE

"A reduction in bond interest rate will affect your insurance policy, and deprive the widow and orphan on your street of the returns they are now getting for their trust money, or perhaps it is yourself. It will affect you to taxpayer in any municipality that you should happen to live in. It will not affect the capitalist class, because the capitalist does not buy bonds. He finds more profitable returns in the industrial or speculative field.

"Let me give you an illustration from our own municipality of Oak Bay. We own $400,000 of government bonds. That is to say, the 3,000 taxpayers of Oak Bay own them. The amount doesn't. They are merely trustees for you in this ownership. And the great majority of our taxpayers are not wealthy men. Many are distinctly poor.

"Now these bonds bring in $16,000 a year. If the governments were to decide to cut their interest rates in half, you would lose $8,000 a year, and your taxes would have to be increased by that amount. Remember that you—the taxpayers of Oak Bay, as a community—belong to that much-maligned class—the bondholders.

OAK BAY WILL PAY

"But you may say, cannot Oak Bay turn down the interest to pays out to those who own its bonds? Our bonds are issued for fixed terms of years, and we cannot alter the rate of interest before maturity without repudiating part of our contract. Fortunately our finances are in good order, and we cannot plead that it is impossible for us to pay. Oak Bay is still able to pay its debts—both interest and principal—and intends to do so.

"At the present time, it is the hope and the announced policy of our government to have a higher standard of living through higher wages. I think that is splendid. Men will live better, and be better. Money will circulate more freely, and everybody will get a share. But there is a big buying power that is depending on the wages of their money. The people who hold this power must suffer if interest is cut down. In my opinion, there more certainly should be a relationship between the wages of money and the wages of men. Wages can not go up and commodity prices down. Commodity prices can not go up and interest rates down.

"We did not hear any complaint about the interest rates on bonds during the heydays of 1928 to 1930, when the earning power of money on the outside market was a great deal higher; and it is my opinion that you would hear very little complaint about the price of money to-day, if the government would release some of its restrictions—particularly its monetarisms—so that construction could proceed on a normal basis, as I think it should.

WERE EXTRAVAGANT

"The cities and districts that are most anxious for a new deal on their bond interest to date, are those that have been extravagant in the past. It is another case of where the thrifty and careful have to take care of the careless and extravagant. However, I am not referring or intimating in the least that the whole responsibility for the municipalities is on the shoulders of these different bodies. The main responsibility rests with the federal and provincial governments. The Dominion Government should be responsible for the care of the unemployed. It is a national disaster, and should be taken care of by the Dominion Government, not from the land tax.

"Secondly, the provincial government should return to the municipalities the grants which it has taken away, and take care of the other social services that it has placed as our responsibility. If these measures were carried out, there would be no necessity and talk of repudiation."

FINANCES IN GOOD SHAPE

Tax Collections Increase, Budget Balances in Oak Bay

In 1934, while many municipalities were going deeper into the hole financially, Oak Bay reduced its outstanding debentures by $41,551, balanced its budget in cash and collected $10,000 more revenue than it expected. The school board finished the year with $2,221 cash on hand, and the police expenditures were $783 below the estimate.

This was the budget picture presented to a public meeting in the municipal hall yesterday evening by Councillor Richard Angus, chairman of the finance committee.

Councillor Angus gave the credit for the favorable position of the finances to the taxpayers of the municipality for their payments of current taxes and arrears. As a result, the record for the year had been established without any increase in the tax levy for 1934.

Reviewing the action of the council, Councillor Angus said that having regard to the gradual decline in the collections of taxes since 1929, the council at the beginning of 1934 concluded that an 85 per cent collection of the levy was all that could be expected.

In view of this estimate the council budgeted to draw on the surplus in the sinking funds for $18,000 to cover the installation of a high-pressure water system, and a $6,000 estimated deficit.

However, the taxes, current and arrears, came in to the extent of $12,000 better than had been expected, and other receipts were $6,000 higher than the estimates.

CASH SURPLUS

As a result the council had been able not only to pay out of the current revenue all the work undertaken, but in addition a new truck costing $5,000 had been purchased, and the council finished the year with a balance of $2,276. This meant the balancing of the budget for the first time since 1929.

Councillor Angus said expenditures had been well within the estimate. The school board was also entitled to credit for having closed the year with $2,221 in hand.

The police commissioners had also showed a saving of $783 below their estimates.

The position in which the council found itself was very largely due to the wise financing of early councils and to the fact that for twenty years past the councils had only borrowed on debentures about $150,000 for school buildings and $90,000 for local improvements.

The debentures outstanding at the beginning of the year were $607,000, and these had been reduced by the end of the year to $565,000, or a reduction of $41,000.

The sinking funds on hand at the end of the year were $502,716, leaving a net debt at the end of 1934 of $62,276, a reduction during the year of $39,269.

SINKING FUNDS SOUND

The sinking fund surplus stands at $41,976. Bonds held by the sinking fund had a book value of $370,000 and a par value of $412,000.

The situation was all the more creditable to the people of Oak Bay when it was taken into account that the government grants, in common with other municipalities, had been reduced by a very large amount, he said.

The amount received from the government in 1931 had been $48,000, while in 1934 it was only $10,000, or a reduction as between the two years of about $38,000.

SCHOOL BOARD'S WORK

The report of the activities of the school board was given by the new chairman, Trustee S. J. Drake. He expressed his regret at the retirement of Charles Macmaster from the board, but felt that a good trustee had been selected in New Petersen.

The schools had been maintained at a high standard with two principals that could not be excelled, Captain F. G. Deane, in the schools, and D. H. Harrison of the High School. There was an efficient staff of teachers who were devoted to the work of the schools. To the janitors he gave a large amount of the credit for the school buildings being kept in splendid shape. To the secretary, E. C. Corbett, the board had a most valuable official. The school nurse, Miss Bradshaw, came in for a large amount of praise. In times like the present, the services of the nurse were most important, Mr. Drake declared.

The cutting down of the government grants to schools had had the effect of throwing upon the board the levying of higher rates for school purposes upon the taxpayers. Due care had been taken to keep this down as low as consistent with good schools.

PATHFINDING

Established in 1817, the Bank of Montreal was the first permanent bank in British North America.

Inaugurating branch banking in Canada, it was the first bank in the capital of Lower Canada, first in the capital of Upper Canada, and first of the present banks in Bytown, afterwards Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion. It was the first permanent bank to be established west of the Great Lakes and the first to achieve a transcontinental system of branches. It was also:

The first institution to provide Canada with a domestic currency, both bills and coinage;

The first bank to assist in financing the foreign trade of Canada;

The first banker for the Government of Canada;

The first bank to help finance the improvement of the St. Lawrence Waterway, through the assistance it gave to the building of the first Lachine Canal.

From its inception the Bank of Montreal has held the confidence of the Canadian people. Today that confidence is expressed in the fact that the Bank holds more than one million deposit accounts, equal to a deposit account for one in every ten persons in the entire Dominion.

Canadians naturally expect, as the sequel to such a record, that this Bank will retain the spirit of the pioneer in co-operating with the future business life of the nation.

MISS MALKIN IS ACCLAIMED

Young Vancouver Pianiste In Brilliant Performance; Musical Arts Auspices

In presenting Miss Ursula Malkin of Vancouver in recital yesterday afternoon at the Empress Hotel, the Victoria Musical Arts deserves every congratulation upon its perspicacity in encouraging and fostering what may be termed local talent and for giving music-lovers of the city the pleasure and privilege of hearing a young artiste who, if ability and musicianship are any criterion, seems destined to make a name for herself in the front rank of Canadian pianists.

In a programme of ambitious calibre and well-chosen variety, which included Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, Glazounow and Liszt, this young artist quickly established herself in the affections of her large and most appreciative audience by her evident sincerity of purpose. All of her numbers revealed most careful preparation and an intimate understanding of the composer's mood and intention which, with her brilliant execution, ensured a thoroughly satisfying performance.

Two Bach preludes and fugues (Nos. 13 and 15, Book 2) opened the programme, and afforded the young pianist an opportunity to display her finished style and adequate technical equipment, while the Beethoven Thirty-two Variations on a Theme in C Minor which followed it still further bore out the impression of dynamic force and intellectual approach.

The Chopin Etudes Nos. 9 and 12, Opus 10, and Nos. 1, 3, 5 and 12, Opus 25, were brilliantly played, and fully deserved the clamorous applause, which resulted in the addition of the Chopin "Mazurka" as an encore.

For the final group Miss Malkin chose "Reflets dans l'eau" and "Danse" (Debussy), played with scintillating style insight, and warm tone; the dramatic "St. Francis Walking on the Waters" (Liszt), in which the artist skilfully interpreted the angry mood of the waters and the underlying spiritual calm, the majestic proportions of the composition testing all her technical and dynamic resources; and the charming Glazounov "La Nuit," rounding out one of the finest programmes ever given under the auspices of the Musical Arts Society and engendering the hope that this promising young artist will again be heard here before long.

At the close of the afternoon, tea was served in the ballroom foyer, when many of the audience availed themselves of the opportunity of expressing their individual congratulations to Miss Malkin.

ENGAGEMENT AGAIN RUMORED

Queen Wilhelmina and Juliana

According to a London dispatch, rumor has linked the name of Princess Juliana of the Netherlands with that of Baron von Hardenbrunk, son of the Commander of the Household Cavalry, much to the displeasure of Queen Wilhelmina. Previous rumors coupled the name of the princess with that of the Grand Duke Friedrich Franz of Mecklenburg and Prince Carl of Sweden, but in each instance the mooted engagement was denied.

NONAGENARIAN HAS BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Margaret Fraser Honored Yesterday On Ninety-third Anniversary

The reception rooms were bright with yellow chrysanthemums and other cut flowers sent by friends. Beautiful flowering plants were presented by the Esquimalt chapter of the Eastern Star, ladies' auxiliary of the T.B. Veterans, Daughters of St. George (No. 65), Esquimalt Women's Institute and the Esquimalt Community Club, and many pretty and useful gifts were received from these organizations and from individual friends. The tea table was centred with daffodils and carnations, the gift of Mrs. Owens, Vancouver, and featured a beautifully decorated birthday cake made and presented by Mrs. J. Knowles. Mrs. N. Kelly presided, assisted by Mrs. Munn and Mrs. Woolridge. Mrs. Fraser and Mrs. Mossop were assisted in receiving their guests by Mrs. S. Weddings

EVANS—JAMES

Of much interest was the wedding that took place on Saturday, January 12, at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Port Alberni, at 6 a.m., when Elizabeth Veronica James, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. James, became the bride of Mr. Lloyd Benjamin Evans, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Evans, all of Port Alberni. Nuptial mass attended the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Father W. Smith. Members of the children's choir supplied the choral part of the service and Mrs. F. Barrett presided at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was graceful in her bridal gown of rich ivory duchess satin, designed on flowing lines over which her wedding veil of silk net hung, suspended from a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a trailing bouquet of white chrysanthemums and spiral ferns. Miss Winnifred Hutchinson, cousin of the bride, was the bridesmaid in attendance, gowned in plush pink charmeuse silk, fashioned with cyclay white satin and picture hat of white glace silk, and she carried a shower bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, the three-tiered wedding cake centring the artistically arranged table. Mrs. James, mother of the bride, received the guests attired in a gown of black crepe satin, with old ivory lace collar and cuffs.

Later in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Evans left for Victoria and Vancouver, where the honeymoon is being spent, the bride wearing for travelling, a smart tailored ensemble of olive green gabardine with small tricorne velvet hat in harmonizing tones. On their return, they will take up residence at Butte Street, Calgary district, Port Alberni.

BUSY YEAR FOR ARTS SOCIETY

D. S. Cameron New President Island Group; Reorganization Planned

At the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Island Arts and Crafts Society, held yesterday evening in the club rooms, Yates and Langley Streets, the following officers were elected: Hon. president, T. S. Gore; president, D. S. Cameron; vice-president, S. M. Hobbs; secretary, Miss G. Woodward; treasurer, Cyril Connerton; executive committee, Mr. C. Campbell, Mrs. Ronald, Miss B. Grimison, Miss B. Newton, Miss Adamson and Miss Baxter. A standing vote of thanks to the retiring secretary, Miss C. I. Alexander, was proposed by Mrs. Loveland and spoken to by Mr. Cameron, who, in the name of the society, expressed the deep appreciation of the members of Miss Alexander's excellent services, and wished her every happiness in her long holiday upon which she is shortly leaving Victoria.

WILL REORGANIZE

The newly appointed officers will devote all their energies to reorganizing the activities of the society, and at an early date will meet to discuss the best interests of the whole, receiving and inviting suggestions from the full membership for the future of the society.

Miss J. Crease brought to the attention of the meeting the position of up-island members, whose affiliation with the society consists merely in the privilege of exhibiting at the annual exhibition; for such members Miss Crease suggested that the annual membership fee should be decreased, and the suggestion met with instant approval, and will apply to resident members outside Greater Victoria.

The report of the secretary, Miss C. I. Alexander, reviewed the activities of the year. Special lectures included "Art in General and Canadian Art in Particular," by Mr. E. Vander pant of Vancouver; an address by A. M. D. Fairbairn on the Haida Indians and their art; an address by Sir Charles Delme-Radcliffe.

Reference was made to the exhibition of Scottish paintings at the Windermere Hotel. The success of the Sketch Club in its weekly out-of-doors meetings during the summer months and its life classes in the club rooms during the winter, was revealed in the many clever sketches placed about the rooms for the pleasure of the meeting. The annual exhibition held in October in the Belmont Building, though not as large as in some years, was most successful. Regret was expressed at the departure from Victoria of Mr. Barker, G. Southwell, Mrs. Biller and Mrs. Reynolds, all artists and valued members of the society.

A very satisfactory report of finances for the year was then presented by Cyril Connerton.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Preceding the election of officers, the retiring president reviewed some of the activities and referred with pride to the accomplishments of the society in past years. Particularly noteworthy was the pioneer movement in securing technical training in the Victoria High School. This had been directly attributed through the interest and generosity of the Island Arts and Crafts during the active years of the late J. J. Shallcross and Dr. R. S. Hamilton; funds had been supplied from the society and other encouragement given until the technical evening classes became an established fact. The Island Arts and Crafts to-day is the largest art society in Canada, said Mr. Cameron, in conclusion, illustrating the importance of nurturing a wider and more virile interest in its aims and objects and the increasing value of its activities in this community.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

TEACH COURTESY BY MAKING IT EASY FOR CHILD

It is the perplexed plaint of mothers that children old enough to know better continue to show so little interest and courtesy toward adult relatives and friends.

"Children didn't used to be that way," one mother said. It is equally true that children in the past had fewer demands made upon them as social individuals. They were seen but not heard, while now they are both seen and heard and their childish reactions are less than pleasing to the parents.

The child who looks with cold eyes at the adult friends of the parent is probably suffering from nothing more serious than a lack of interest.

CHILDREN ARE BLUNT

The adult world is full of fascination for children, but seldom the individuals who inhabit it. Adults are something to lurk in corners to look at, listen to, wonder at—because they are strange and mystifying to children. The manners which we accept as natural, the social patter, seems just foolish to children.

They are forthright and blunt. When they like someone they go up and give him a shove or offer him something they themselves would like to have. But having to say "How do you do," and answer meaningless questions about themselves, all in the interests of "being polite," is medicine to some children.

SOMETHING HAS TO BE DONE

Meanwhile, children can't be allowed to grow up little savages. We have a leaflet, "Etiquette for Children," which discusses the various aspects of how children may be trained. You may have a copy of it by sending with your request a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

Children have to be exposed to courtesy and mannerliness and as little as possible demanded of them, until they become infected. What seems most awry in our social system is that all that is expected of children are manners. We really do not want their society. We merely want them to appear, "do their stuff" and disappear.

LET THEM SIT AROUND

Better far to allow children the privilege of being with adults. Demand little of them, but do not shut them off from "company" when they have said their little say. Let them sit around, listen and smile but get the feeling behind the patter, which is above all else, just interest in other people.

Later on when the child feels a personal need to make other people aware of him as a personality, he will use, without embarrassment the behavior, the manners, which he knows to be successful in showing other people his interest in them. Until that time make social intercourse familiar to him but neither onerous nor burdensome.

L'Alliance Hears Of Versailles

The fortnightly meeting of L'Alliance Francaise held yesterday afternoon concerned itself with the survey of Versailles from varied aspects, and with Mrs. M. Little presiding, a great deal was brought to light from different able writers, upon this always engrossing topic. Mrs. E. Hamilton Smith brought some exquisite illustrations of the palace and gardens of Versailles and Trianon. A sketch of the life and activities of "La Grande Mademoiselle" was read by Miss Coach, and at its conclusion the celebrated letter of Madame de Sevigne was read by Miss Dorothy Kennedy. Mrs. Baker spoke of the early dreams and ambitions of Louis XIV and his plans for the gardens at Versailles, and the reckless low of life attendant upon the carrying out of these extravagant and gigantic plans.

Miss Robb gave a delightful picture of the pomp and ceremonies enacted by court etiquette; Miss Ellis spoke of the architecture, Mlle Minter dealt with the origins of Versailles and gave some interesting information upon the various apartments. Mrs. F. T. Stanier spoke of the creation of the Duc de St. Simon. Madame Vivenot of the great Vauban and his active military genius. Mrs. Inglis spoke of Colbert and his passion for glory and grandeur, while a description of the lavish expenditure of the festivals held at Versailles, concluded a programme of animated discussion.

The next fortnightly meeting will be held on February 6 at 3 o'clock. A lecture will be given at a date to be announced in February, the second of the winter series.

JORDAN RIVER

The fortnightly bridge game was held in Jordan River on Saturday, prize-winners being: First, Mrs. H. G. Keough; second, Mrs. D. I. Walker; gentlemen, first, C. Bent; second, S. Minten.

Miss Esther Gibbs, Marigold, has been staying here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. I. Walker.

A. Boyd has returned from Vancouver, where he visited relatives.

Monk's Daughter Is Tiger Tamer

Marie Rasputin Appears in London Circus; Woman's Presence of Mind Saves Air Pilot and Others From Death

London. — A young woman, who also is much in the public eye here at the moment for her exploits and fearlessness, is none other than the daughter of the Russian monk, Rasputin.

Marie Rasputin is a tiger-tamer, and she does her "turn" at Olympia Circus.

Dressed elegantly as a Cossack, with high leather boots, her finger nails gleaming with scarlet, she stands alone in a cage with six powerful tigers.

They may growl and lift their ugly paws menacingly at her, but she does not turn a hair.

Armed with only a whip and a revolver containing blanks, she makes them "do their stuff," prance from box to box, form arches and figures and finally bow to the audience.

But she will not talk about her father. He was a very good father, she says, a trifle hard to his children, but that is all.

As one looks at those penetrating eyes, however, one feels that she would only need to whisper, "Go to sheep," and one would be nodding off.

PRESENCE OF MIND

A woman's amazing presence of mind has saved four people from almost certain disaster.

This is how it happened:

Miss Edith Martin, aged thirty, was cooking her breakfast at a gas stove in her house at Croydon.

She heard a noise and, looking up, saw a giant French air-liner charging straight at her kitchen window.

The machine had overshot the boundary of the Croydon airdrome in a fog and was then ploughing its way through the fence of Miss Martin's garden.

A few seconds before it came crashing into the wall, Miss Martin pushed her father out of the back door into safety.

The next instant there was a tremendous crash as the machine, its engines forming a battering-ram, tore a hole twelve feet square in the side of the kitchen.

The right-hand motor stopped only a foot away from the gas stove.

Petrol began to stream out of the damaged pipes and tanks, and pools of the highly inflammable spirit began to swirl round the still burning gas cooker.

In the room there was also an open coal fire.

For the second time Miss Martin's astonishing coolness came to her aid.

Without a moment's hesitation she turned off the gas, and then, kneeling in the spreading pool of petrol, she began to put out the kitchen fire.

As a result the pilot of the machine, which was bringing mail from Paris to London, M. Emile d'Armando, received nothing worse than cuts from flying glass, his wireless operator, M. Andre Campion, was quite unhurt. Mr. Martin, the father, escaped with shock, and Miss Martin herself suffered only a few cuts on the arm.

The kitchen of the Martins' house, on the other hand, and part of the dining-room were demolished, and half the roof was stripped of its tiles.

LOVE BY WIRELESS

But then, eating does not seem to matter all that amount. . . .

So, at any rate, Miss Eve Beck, or rather the Countess Canevi di Rivarolo, would tell you. For this is her story:

One day two years ago she was singing one of her songs on the wireless at the B.B.C. studios in London.

A young Italian count turned on his wireless in Milan, 1,000 miles away.

He heard the song, was fascinated by the voice, and fell in love with the singer he had never seen then and there.

But he did not know who she was or where to find her.

A few months later he came to London, and, while at a party, he heard the voice again. He rushed up to his hostess and got himself introduced. Two days later they were engaged.

That was eighteen months ago. Now they are married.

He is twenty-seven and she is twenty.

THE "BACKWARD" GIRL

About a year ago a girl was taken to the Institute of Medical Psychology in Malet Place (London) suffering from "anxiety-hysteria."

She was said to be of extremely low intelligence, so low, in fact, that nothing could be done with her.

She had little or no memory and from childhood had always been backward.

Now she has not only been declared to be "cured," but it has been found that her brain is equal to, or even better than that of the average university professor.

A series of intelligence tests, advancing from one stage to another, revealed that she possessed these exceptional gifts.

The girl, who is in poor circumstances, is now in the hands of the institute welfare workers, who hope to provide her with the training she deserves.

Woman Gets Post As Trade Expert

London, Jan. 24.—In the recent examination for two vacancies in the Department of Overseas Trade for intelligence officers, a woman succeeded in obtaining one of the appointments.

She is Miss Audrey J. Lenfestey, and will first serve her official trade apprenticeship as a cadet on a salary scale of £315 to £501.

In the ordinary course of promotion she may advance to the positions of director and assistant director, with maximum salaries respectively of £1,800 and £1,600.

She is eligible for appointment as commercial secretary at any embassy abroad, and may be appointed trade commissioner in the dominion or colonial trade centres.

In the new "subject" of personality Miss Lenfestey obtained 260 marks out of a maximum 300.

EIGHTY YEARS AS A SERVANT

Record for Long Service In One Family Ended By Death

London, Jan. 24.—What is believed to be a record for long service with one family has been closed by the death of Mrs. Eliza Gliddon, which was announced in Exeter.

She served the Kennaway family for seventy-eight years, as housemaid, nurse and confidante to three generations. Always she was the perfect servant.

At the age of fifteen she entered the employment of the late Mr. William Kennaway, three times mayor of Exeter.

After his death Mrs. Gliddon was employed by his son, Mr. L. J. Kennaway. And when he also died, at the age of seventy, in 1906, she carried on her faithful duties in the household of Mr. L. M. Kennaway, a solicitor, of Hermosa Road, Teignmouth.

"In my father's time she married a Metropolitan policeman, but shortly afterwards he died," Mr. Kennaway to a reporter. "Her only son also died and so she returned to the service of our family after a very short break.

"When I called on her and as she lay on her deathbed she told me that she was well pleased with her long years of service. 'My one wish has always been to give real satisfaction,' she once said.

"Actually she was working as a laundress even before she obtained employment with my grandfather."

Has Worked Hard For Sixty Years

Erskine, Alta., Jan. 22. — Mrs. Robert Kennedy made her fortune singlehanded during the sixty years she spent on the prairies. To-day in her eightieth year, she is still taking care of herself.

Left a widow with seven children when only thirty-two years of age, at Brandon, Man., she shrewdly opened a restaurant opposite the railroad station and battled her way up from a small shack business to ownership of good-will that returned her $30,000 for an investment of $1,000. In doing so she gave her children the education whose lack had so handicapped her.

Born near Belleville, Ont., she came to Brandon when only eighteen. After her husband's death she worked by the day until she had saved enough to start her small business. She met with many reverses but grimly held on and eventually sold out after her children had grown up.

Her health had broken down, however, and she went to British Columbia. After the war years she started again on a homestead south of here. She retired four years ago but still goes out berrying each year and "puts down" her own preserves to help keep her nest egg intact.

Honeymoon After Golden Wedding

Canadian Press

Johannesburg, South Africa, Jan. 24.—Shortly after celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary recently, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Mashell "honeymooned." Married at Grace Hill Wesleyan Church, at Folkestone in Kent, England, December 7, 1884, they were too poor to afford a honeymoon.

"I was married on a Sunday," Mr. Mashell said, "and I was back at work the next morning. From that day till this Mrs. Mashell and I have not had a holiday together."

FAVORED BY CANADIANS

Accepted by Canadian Physicians Tested and Approved by Canadian Dietitians

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is accepted by Canadian Physicians, has been Tested and approved by Canadian Dietitians.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadians have discovered that this delicious cereal corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. Unless checked, this ailment may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy. You feel below par—fail to get the best out of each day.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies a generous quantity of mild "bulk" to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron. Unlike cathartics, this tempting cereal continues to be effective when used for months.

Isn't it pleasanter to enjoy a gentle, natural food instead of weakening your system with patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. Serve with milk or cream. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Remember, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Canada.

Keep on the Sunny Side of Life

It does not pay to take any chances with so-called "simple" coughs and colds! Fill the bathtub with piping hot water and add three tablespoonfuls of Colman's Mustard mixed first to a thin paste. The old saying is "Leave your cold in a mustard bath!" Soak and relax; perspire and tingle. Then a good rub-down, jump into bed and sweat out the poisons. A grand old remedy! If more convenient, wrap yourself up warm and soak your feet for 15 minutes in a pail of steaming hot water with 1 tablespoonful of Colman's—and get to bed. And you can rely on the old-fashioned mustard plaster for quick relief for chest colds.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Anne Lee Graham

"Yes, Mr. Fisher."

The man's head back turned. He took a few steps, then suddenly whirled and came back. "And don't forget, Blackman," he said. "Your pay'll be cut, too!"

• • •

The door of the carpeted office of General Manager Thatcher opened quietly and a girl's figure appeared. She wore a brown fur coat, loosely fitting, expensive looking, and a small brown hat, set at a jaunty angle. The girl had large brown eyes and very red lips. She stepped into the room, closing the door behind her.

"Hello, Dad."

Robert Thatcher looked up from the papers before him. "Vicky!" he said, "I didn't hear you come in."

He was a small man with quick, nervous mannerisms. His hair was graying at the temples. He wore nose glasses on a high-bridged nose that certainly was designed for that purpose, and his thin lips were set in an almost straight line.

"Of course, you didn't," the girl said. "You never hear anything when you're in this stuffy old place. You don't even know when it's time to stop working. That's why I've come to take you home."

"But it's so early—"

"It's after 5 o'clock," the girl said, firmly, "and you've been late every night this week. Come on, Darling. Do as Vicky says"

She seated herself on the arm of the big desk chair, dropped an arm around her father's shoulder, twisted a wisp of his silver hair into a ringlet and looked down at him, smiling.

Some of the forbidding frostiness about Robert Thatcher seemed to melt away. "But I have work to do, Vicky," he objected. "Just let me finish this list—"

"Not another word! Not another minute! Come on—get your hat and coat!"

Presently they were outside, getting into a roadster. Vicky drove as she always did—reckless of speed, of traffic regulations, delighting in the power of the smooth-running motor. Once or twice she laughed over her shoulder, silencing her father's remonstrances. For twenty years Vicky Thatcher had had her own blissful, badly spoiled way with the entire world and she had no thought of relinquishing it.

Throughout the dinner that followed, Vicky was unusually high-spirited, unusually thoughtful about her father's likes and dislikes. The roast was his favorite and so was the dessert. Over coffee and cigarettes, Vicky said casually, "Remember, I told you Kay Stoner and her mother have gone to Havana?"

"Yes."

"Kay wants me to come down for a few weeks. She says they're having a grand time—swimming and golfing and lots of parties. She won $500 at the races one day last week—and lost it the same night at the casino. And she's met an awfully nice crowd—"

"But, Vicky, I don't want you running off to Havana. Why, you haven't been home a month yet"

The red lips pouted prettily. "A month? It's been ages! You can't expect me to stay in this horrible dull town all the time without ever seeing anybody or having any fun"

"Didn't you promise that if you could have the new car you wouldn't ask for any trips?"

"That was last summer. I didn't suppose you meant for all the rest of my life!"

Robert Thatcher sighed. "I don't want to say 'No,' Vicky. Just now, though, times are a little bad. I'd rather you stayed home, but we'll see—oh, by the way, I've some news I forget to tell you."

The girl stacked generally, without looking up.

"Brian Westmore's home," her father went on.

"Brian?"

"Yes. His mother told me yesterday. Said he was to get in this afternoon. I guess I forgot to mention it."

"Brian Westmore's back from Paris," the girl said slowly. "You mean—to stay?"

"Well, I don't know about that. But at least for a time. I think he's rather discouraged about becoming an artist. That's what Mrs. Westmore indicated."

The girl was on her feet. The brown eyes that had been so listless were glowing now, animated. "I'm going upstairs," she said. "I'll be right back."

A moment later, in her own room, Vicky Thatcher held the telephone to her lips and gave a number. She leaned forward, waiting eagerly for the answering voice.

CHAPTER V

Vicky Thatcher swung one slipper-toe and spoke into the ivory telephone. "Oh, Mrs. Westmore," she was saying. "Father's just told me that Brian's home from Paris—"

The answer could not have pleased her, for white teeth closed down on the crimson lip. Vicky frowned slightly. Her voice did not alter, though, as she went on smoothly, "Oh—he's not there? But it doesn't matter at all. I just wanted to tell you, Mrs. Westmore, how glad I am about it—for you, I mean. Brian really should be with you. I know he'll be a great comfort. Of course, all of us—I mean his old friends—will be glad to see him."

She listened for a moment and then went on. "Yes, I saw him in Paris, you know, last winter. That's why it was such a surprise when Father told me. I thought Brian was going to stay abroad. Yes? Well, oh, that's nice of you to say that. Why, of course. I'll be glad to—"

A minute later she had put down the telephone, stood staring at her reflection in the full-length mirror. Vicky's hair fitted her head smoothly like a cap. It was so dark it was almost black. She changed the outline of the cap slightly, studied the effect and changed it again. Now she was smiling. With elaborate casualness she took a fresh cigarette from a box, lighted it and hurried down the stairs.

Her father, almost completely buried in a newspaper, sat in a big chair before the fireplace. Vicky drew a footstool nearer and sat down.

Robert Thatcher said, "H-m-m."

Vicky threw one arm across his knees. "Father—" she said.

"Yes."

"Father, I want to talk to you."

The edge of the newspaper sagged. Thatcher looked down at his daughter. "Well—?" he asked.

Vicky's brown eyes were completely guileless. "I want you to forget what I said about going to Havana," she said, "with the Stoners. I've changed my mind. I mean I'd really rather stay here—with you."

Robert Thatcher covered her hand with his. "Maybe later—" he suggested.

Vicky nodded. "Maybe later there'll be some place I'll want to go. In the meantime I'm going to stay right here. There's one thing, though, Dad. I do need some clothes terribly."

"Can't you buy them?"

"You darling! I think I'll run up to New York for a couple of days' shopping. I could be back by Thursday—"

Thatcher smiled. "Run along," he said. "I'm glad you've decided not to go to Cuba. I'm glad you're going to stay here for a while."

Vicky rose from the footstool, crossed the room to where the radio stood and dialed a dance band. She was humming to herself, moving slightly with the rhythm of the one-step as her father returned to his newspaper. Presently she went upstairs again to her bedroom.

And then the day—which had brought important changes in the lives of four persons—ended. Vicky Thatcher planned her trip to New York, the gowns she would buy, the hotel restaurant where she'd drop in for lunch, the amusing friends she might look up—

Steve Meyers, less than a mile away, pushed open the door to the kitchen of the house where he lived with his mother and entered, walking heavily. Steve carried a load of firewood which he dropped into a bin beside the stove. His mother called from the next room. "Steve, don't forget I'll need some kindling."

"I'll get it."

Steve turned, quietly, and left the house. Gale hadn't said she'd marry him. He'd hardly hoped that she would—right away. But she'd told him there was no one else. She'd said that much. And she'd promised to give him an answer in a day or two.

What would that answer be?

Steve, healthy, sturdy, was a natural optimist. He picked up a piece of kindling wood, broke it with a loud snap, over his knee. Steve began whistling a tune he liked. It was a good tune. Part of the words went:

"I want a girl just like the girl
Who married dear old Dad—"

Meanwhile Gale Henderson hurried along a dark street with small box-like dwellings on either side. Gale hoped she'd be able to get into the house without meeting anyone. She must change her clothes for something dry. She hoped that her father would be in his room, for she didn't want to tell him about the ice cracking. It would only worry him.

And at the same time Brian Westmore stood on a deserted river bank, gazing at a smouldering bonfire. The girl was gone—no doubt about that. Brian turned and walked back to where he had parked the coupe. He eased himself behind the steering wheel, stepped on the starter.

"I wonder," Brian asked the silent darkness, "what her name is?"

For these four persons it had been an important day—more so than any of them realized.

Teachers Seek To Restore Cuts

Delegation Presents Request To School Board With Explanation of Grounds For Action; Trustees Sympathetic

School teachers of Victoria yesterday evening made their first bid this year for restoration, at least in part, of their salary reductions. At the regular meeting of the city School board, the teachers' association submitted a letter asking the board to consider the matter when going into estimates for 1935.

The communication was presented following the reception of a deputation from the association, headed by Wm. H. Wilson, president, and principal of Sir James Douglas School.

The teachers at present were suffering from a sixteen per cent cut, Mr. Wilson reminded the board. That had been made up by two reductions, the first amounting to ten per cent and the second six.

"We feel conditions have changed and the time is now ripe for consideration of the return at least in part of our reductions," Mr. Wilson stated.

SALARY CUTS RESTORED

He based his body's claim on two main items. Business had improved and there was a general movement toward restoration of salary reductions, notably in the dominion and provincial civil service, the Canadian National Railway, the Canadian Pacific Railway, the British Columbia Electric Railway and other big concerns.

The fact those corporations had begun to restore salaries indicated business was on the upturn and that the concerns felt it was the best policy to make restoration, he added.

Mr. Wilson declared the teachers realized the mayor and council had seen the cabinet making special dispensations for Victoria, but at the same time, he drew the board's attention to the money in city tax collections over the estimates last year. Tax prepayments so far this year had also far exceeded those of the corresponding period in 1934, he added.

Even if the mill rate were maintained at what it was in 1934, the taxpayers would be receiving assistance through lowering assessments, Mr. Wilson pointed out.

To his way of thinking, the preliminary draft of the school estimates, as published in the press, indicated the school finances were in better shape than last year.

NEW SCHEME

In addition to these arguments, he stated a new scheme was under consideration by the government aimed to relieve property owners of part at least of the burden of school costs.

The board had been very economical in recent years and had spent no money on frills or innovations in education. It had also been successful in maintaining a three-year course at Victoria High School instead of persuading the course for four years.

He hoped the board would consider it logical to raise salaries as a part of its sane, sound policies.

When the last cut was made it was virtually the absorption by the teachers of the reduction in the provincial government grant for schools. When the teachers took it, they understood, even though no definite statement was made, that it would be returned when the grant was increased, he said.

TRUSTEES IN SYMPATHY

Trustee F. E. George asked if the teachers had fixed a percentage figure in their request and was told they had not. He voiced his personal desire to see the six per cent restored if some way could be found to produce the $21,000 which the six per cent represented.

Trustee Kenneth Ferguson also voiced sympathy with the teachers and stated he felt the board should and would make restitutions when it could.

When the opportunity afforded itself, he would associate himself with a move to bring back salaries to their former figures, Chairman W. C. Moresby stated. A great deal this year would depend on parliamentary dispensation with regard to schools at the next session, he stated.

Correcting an erroneous impression regarding a surplus of $5,000 in last year's school accounts, Trustee George stated that had been made to meet a pledge the board had given the City Council before the latter body approved the school budget. The sum should, he said, have been spent on buildings and grounds.

The salary question was promised serious consideration by the chairman as the delegation left.

H. Extance Again Visits Vancouver

Vancouver, Jan. 24.—Twenty-five years ago Harry Extance and W. C. Woodward worked over books of the Royal Bank of Canada here. Mr. Extance came back yesterday as chief accountant of the Bank of Canada. He was welcomed by his former fellow employee, elected yesterday at Ottawa as the head of directors of the new institution.

Born in Vancouver, Mr. Extance worked as a bank clerk here before going east. Later he went to Cuba and was in the employ of the Trust Company of Cuba when Graham Towers, head of the Bank of Canada, brought him back to the Dominion to take up his new duties.

Mr. Extance's visit is partly in connection with the organization of the new bank and partly to see his family and old friends.

There are 38,000 born cats in England and Wales, according to estimates.

A FEW SIDELIGHTS YOU WOULD DO well to take a peep. Many months back, preachers and cabinet ministers alike advocated prayers as a means of clearing away the chaos that blanketed our fair land. They felt they were at the end of their financial tether (few, however, lost sleep over the immortal part). More to-morrow. But don't forget the way to build a healthy body. You must act wisely each day as you go. Kill off the little germs, health's greatest foe. MALE CHOIR SANG WELL

Dorothy Parsons and Maquinna Daniels Assist In Fine Programme

By G. S. D.

Stalwart and true to the study and cause of male voice singing the members of the Victoria Male Choir, under their personable and stalwart leader, Frank Tupman, are in their very enthusiasm and ambitious contributing in no small degree to the city's musical performances during the winter months.

In its twelfth recital the choir was heard at the Empress Hotel ballroom yesterday evening under the most favorable circumstances, and as on each successive public appearance, more and more justifies its high position and standards.

The choir gave altogether eleven enjoyably contrasting and well-selected numbers, the majority being heard here for the first time, and throughout maintained an impressive mobility of tone and expression, virtues which are to be numbered among the choir's acquisitions and not the least the choir's excellent spirit and genuine heart interest.

In the blending of voices it is unquestioned that the basses overweight the tenors, especially felt in such numbers as "Silent Strings" by Granville Bantock (here the comment "y" at times passed unnoticed); in "The Blue Danube Waltz" (Johann Strauss), and in Donizetti's "Now the Night in Starlit Splendor." If Mr. Tupman could, by a process of subtraction from the basses, make an addition to the tenor section, a more perfect blending of voices would be obtained. Imagine in an orchestra the 'cello and double basses overweighting the violins. But there lies the "if" and the prevailing difficulties in tenor ranks are very well known.

The two unaccompanied numbers, "Lullaby" (Leo Wallace), and Dvorak's "Send Love, O Dusky Night," had better balance and were delightful in color, expression and a genuine plasticity. Outstanding points were splendidly obtained in "Bells at Evenide," by Rachmaninoff, in which the ding-dongs, flashing lightnings, pouring rains and the thunder crashes were such vocal efforts that the keenly interested audience evidently enjoyed and sought its repetition.

In the concluding number (also repeated) the spirit of the music was admirable and definite indications were there in the splendidly articulated passage, "I am the master of my fate, the captain of my soul."

ASSISTING ARTISTS

Assisting in the proceedings were Dorothy Parsons, soprano, and Maquinna Daniels, pianiste, both prominent on local concert platforms and outstanding in their respective spheres.

Their appearances added still further to their previous successes and they, too, are undoubtedly advancing to the greater things that only come with hard work and persistency. Both received a full measure of enthusiastic applause in their groups, Miss Parsons selecting for the opening two groups, in the first of which we liked her best in the famous air, "Lasti Signor," from Meyerbeer's "Les Huguenots," in which she finely achieved the trills and cadenzas, and considerable note and feeling did the singer attain in Wagner's "Dreams," as she did also in the recall number of the same character. In her second group Miss Parsons was equally confident, combining an underlying poetic, and emunciated vitality.

Pearl Curran's "Nocturne" had appropriate refinement and in "Maids of Cadiz," by Delibes, was one of her best of the evening. Again she was recalled and gave in charming fashion the sweetly pretty English pastorale, "Summer Shower." She was admirably accompanied by Mr. Parsons.

Miss Daniels, who accompanied the choir most efficiently, played two numbers, one of Brahms's Intermezzi, the E flat minor, and Dohnanyi's "Rhapsodie" in F sharp minor, with considerable musical insight, warmth and assurance, and in the latter a really brilliant performance of a very inspiring work, she evinced poetic rhythm and mood undeniably transmitted to her hearers, who applauded most liberally.

COMEDY IS SEEN IN CRIME PLOT

"Murder in the Private Car" Features Charles Ruggles At Playhouse

Fun and entertainment that bubbles with unusual angles, is seen in "Murder in the Private Car" which opened to-day at the Playhouse Theatre.

To those inclined to philosophize their amusement, it may indicate a welcome trend of the screen back toward those basic elements that made silent pictures so successful—movement, laughter, thrills, drama.

But to nearly everybody "Murder in the Private Car" will be good entertainment, with more than usually fine comedy.

Charlie Ruggles tops the cast of featured players and around him revolves the intriguing story.

Much of the action takes place on a private car attached to the rear of a transcontinental train speeding from Los Angeles to New York. Clutching hands, screams in the dark, warnings of impending disaster, madmen and gorillas are interwoven in the plot in believable and bewildering profusion.

The second feature on the programme is "You Can't Buy Everything," with Jean Parker, Lewis Stone and May Robson.

Vancouver Is To Have No Bookies

Mayor McGeer Tells Police They Are Expected To End Betting Operations

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 24.—Mayor G. G. McGeer yesterday issued orders to police authorities that all Vancouver bookmakers must be put out of operation.

The mayor estimated there are about 500 bookmakers and their agents in Vancouver handling wagers on races at tracks in the United States.

Mr. McGeer declared one of the chief objections to bookmakers was that their existence tended to hamper work of police in combating criminals such as burglars, street robbers and safe-crackers. He said when a suspect was picked up and found to have considerable money he often gave the alibi that he had won the money on horse-racing.

CRAFT GUILDS IN GERMANY

New Nazi Law Now In Effect Recases Modern Industry In Medieval Molds

Berlin, Jan. 24.—The Nazi revolution has come to grips with the industrial revolution as the government moves to recase Germany's twentieth century industry in moulds of the medieval craft guilds.

A new law put into effect yesterday puts all the nation's skilled labor into the so-called Craftsmanship Chamber, similar in three state—apprenticeship, journeymen and master—to the craft guilds of the Middle Ages.

The legislation, like National Socialism, emphasizes the virtues of the early Germans.

BLACK CAT ON COLUMBIA BILL

David Manners Starred In Universal's Thriller Now Showing Here

David Manners, who is now at the Columbia Theatre in Universal's new thriller, "The Black Cat," has more than the usual hero's share of villainy to combat—with Karloff and Lugosi the stars of the picture!

Manners was born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, under the name of Ranff Acklom. The family later moved to New York, where he attended private schools, the Collegiate grammar school and Trinity High School. He graduated from the University of Toronto, where his parents had sent him to make him forget his histrionic ambitions.

But he was determined to become an actor and fresh from college he returned to New York to "fall into" a part in "Dancing Mothers." He later appeared with the Theatre Guild. Subsequently he married an Arizona girl, Suzanne Bushnell.

Shown on the same programme as second feature is Roscoe Ates and Richard Arlen in "Golden Harvest."

FISHERY MAN WAS MAROONED

Duncan, Jan. 24.—Edward Gunn, fisheries guardian, turned up safely at Cowichan Bay Tuesday afternoon, after being away in his launch for nine days.

Much anxiety was felt for his safety. The Dominion Government fishery cruiser from Nanaimo and other boats were out looking for him. He spent the time at Boot Bay and Saturna Island, where the weather was so rough he could not proceed, waves washing over his boat and freezing on the deck. He had plenty of food, fortunately, and at one house on the island he was able to dry his clothing and obtain a change.

COLBERT GIVEN CLUE TO WEALTH

Ned Sparks Aids Claudette In "Imitation of Life" At Dominion

On two words rested the fortune of Claudette Colbert in the story of "Imitation of Life," John M. Stahl's Universal drama which is at the Dominion Theatre to-morrow, with Miss Colbert and Warren William in the starring roles.

With her entered cook, Louise Beavers, Miss Colbert had established on the boardwalk in Atlantic City a seaside restaurant known as Aunt Delilah's Pancake Shop, where the dusky servant's surpassingly delicious flapjacks were dispensed to delighted customers. Prosperity had come, but nothing approaching a fortune.

One rainy afternoon Ned Sparks, a rabid pancake fancier completely out of funds, approached the door slyly and hooked of his prowess as a flapjack eater when he had the money to pay for them, and the kind-hearted Miss Colbert proceeded to set before him all he could eat on the house. In gratitude, Sparks gave her a hundred thousand-dollar idea in two words: "Box 18!"

And so came about a pancake flour which made them a fortune.

And then came a love affair with a strange conclusion.

CAPITOL

In the glamorous career of a world famous operatic star worth the price a woman must pay in work and personal sacrifice? That is the question which underlies the story of "Evensong," Gaumont British picture starring Evelyn Laye, which is now being shown at the Capitol Theatre. Based on the stage play which Edward Knoblock and Beverley Nichol adapted from the latter's successful novel, this is the absorbing screen chronicle of the life of a woman who thought no price too high to pay for the career of a successful prima-donna. How she succeeded—and how she paid—compromise the motivating basis of what is said to be a fine picture enhanced by an unusually melodious background, plus rich and convincing scenic settings.

Evelyn Laye, who, before she was commandeered by the screen, enjoyed a notable career as a singer in operetta and musical comedy, portrays the role of a beautiful and talented girl who runs away from home, going to Paris with a struggling musician. When the opportunity comes for her to emerge as an operatic star, she flings all other considerations to the wind, in order to follow the call of destiny.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

FRIDAY, JANUARY 25, 1935

Adverse planetary aspects are active today, according to astrology. It is a day which it is better to depend upon persons in high place than to trust one's own initiative.

Although there is a good sign for those who make questions or appointments this is a day of postponements and hesitation. The wise will preserve a philosophical attitude toward hard luck. Disappointment may be unusually sensitive and easily disturbed under this rule, which oftentimes causes despondency and even desperation.

Warning is given that there may be hesitancy and the feeling that the end of the road has been reached while this configuration prevails, but good fortune comes eventually although with halting steps.

Labor is subject to sudden influences that are not foreseen, so that there will be uneasiness thereof in the land. In the coal industry many troubles may develop before the springtime.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the energy of a year of activity and good fortune. Many friends will advance the best interests of the family.

Children born on this day probably will be poetic and of the same time possess real power to lead. Subjects of this sign made the practical with the ideal.

George Edward Pickett, Civil War general, was born on this day, 1825. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Robert Burns, Scottish poet, 1759; Charles Curtis, ex-Vice-president of the United States, 1860.

VEGETABLE CAR HELPS MARKET

Mixed Shipment From California Relieves Shortage; Prices Steady

A carload of mixed vegetables from California, which was unloaded from the Str. Modoc this morning, will relieve the shortage of vegetables on the local market to some extent.

Wholesalers report that the shipment contained cauliflower, spinach, celery and lettuce.

The market, which sky-rocketed at the beginning of the week due to the damage done to local crops by frost and floods, is still short on many items, and prices for all vegetables remain the same.

The demand for carrots cannot be filled, wholesalers say, and though there are a few turnips on hand, they cannot last long. There are sufficient cabbages to supply the local market at the present prices

NEWS IN BRIEF

E. Newton Harvey was appointed by the government to-day as a member of the U.B.C. senate.

Ward Three Liberal Association executive will meet at Liberal headquarters, at 8 p.m. to-morrow.

Loans to cover the municipalities' share of direct relief costs were made by the government to-day. They were $2,000 to Grand Forks, $6,000 to North Vancouver district and $18,000 to North Vancouver city.

Among the Vancouver business men registering at the Empress Hotel today is Hugh Dalton, secretary of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and chairman of the B.C. Salt Fish Marketing Board.

The inclement weather has caused the meeting of the Evergreen Playground Association called for to-morrow at Portland, to be postponed for a week, according to word received from Seattle from the secretary, C. E. Johns.

The Real Estate Board of Victoria will hold a luncheon meeting in Spencer's dining-room to-morrow at 12.30 o'clock. Paul C. Black of the provincial department of agriculture will speak on the subject, "Crops to Be Grown on the Saanich Peninsula."

A lecture on "The Migration of Birds" will be given on Friday evening at 8.15 o'clock by Dr. R. C. Miller, assistant professor of zoology, University of Washington, Seattle. This lecture will be of considerable interest not only to sportsmen, but to bird-lovers in general.

The visit of W. Mel. Clarke, executive secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, who was due here February 1, has been postponed until February 14 because of bad travelling conditions between Montreal and Vancouver. He will be accompanied by W. E. Payne, secretary of the Vancouver Board of Trade, to Victoria, and will probably speak in this city.

Gordon S. Reid, war veteran, was granted suspended sentence by Magistrate George Jay in the City Police Court to-day on two convictions of passing forged cheques. The magistrate noted there was no previous conviction against Mr. Reid. With the suspended sentence he gave a warning Reid would not be shown similar leniency if taken into custody again.

Bowles's Boys' Band will hold its weekly band practice at its headquarters, 1501 Fort Street, to-morrow evening at 7.15 o'clock. A full attendance is expected as a start will be made on the concert piece for local junior bands, class 126, at the Musical Festival here in May. Many more instruments are on hand. Boys wishing to join should phone E 9846, any evening except Friday, after 5 o'clock.

The export of hogged fuel and chipped wood to the United States by the International Pulp Supply Company was authorized to-day by the provincial government. The company has a place on the Alberni Canal from which the stuff will be sent. It is specified that the amount of hogged fuel exported shall not exceed 7,500 units of 200 cubic feet each. The permit is good for five years from February 1.

The weekly luncheon of the Retail Merchants Credit Grantors will be held in the Douglas Hotel dining-room at 12.10 o'clock to-morrow. George I. Warren will speak on "How the Merchant Can Help and Profit From the Tourist Industry." No one on the Pacific Coast is more capable or has a better knowledge of this subject than Mr. Warren. The directors expect a large turnout of members to hear this very fine speaker.

The British Columbia Historical Association will hold a special meeting to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Provincial Library. The paper for the evening will be "The History of the Northwest Territories" and will be presented by R. Lindermere of Battleford. He has made a special study of this subject for many years and will give an interesting address. Former prairie residents now in the city are invited to the meeting, which is open to the public.

Mayor Leeming waited to-day for definite word on transportation systems which might get him from Vancouver to Calgary for the cities conference there scheduled to open on Monday. There was some doubt about the lines leading from the Terminal City being able to get through to the Alberta town. If he is unable to go via the Canadian route, he may take the boat for Seattle and proceed by way of Spokane-Yahk. It was understood here to-day the line from Yahk through was open.

John S. Blackie of Vancouver, who had pleaded before the court a couple of weeks ago that W. S. Owen, Vancouver lawyer, had neglected his case, in connection with the Caroline Apartments, Vancouver, again appeared before the B.C. Court of Appeal yesterday. This time he reported he would have later in the day the transcripts which the justices had given him two weeks to have prepared, following his plea that his lawyer had deserted him at the last minute, thus jeopardizing his right to carry on the case. F. G. Fowkes appeared for Mr. Blackie at this second appearance. The justices ruled he could make application later in the week for a place on the list of hearings for the present session.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The Y.M.C.A. Track and Field Club will meet this evening for their annual dinner and election of officers. The supper will begin at 6 o'clock in the "Y" building, and will be followed by a business session in the course of which plans for the coming year will be announced.

The Speakers' Club has invited members of the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday and Wednesday evening public speaking classes to take part in their mock parliament for its two remaining weeks. The parliament, which has already been in session with full ceremonies for two weeks, is reported a great success.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL

The funeral of George W. Brown of 2622 Prior Street, who passed away Monday, was held yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. A large number of beautiful floral tributes was received, testifying to the high esteem in which Mr. Brown was held. Rev. J. H. A. Warr conducted an impressive service, during which two hymns, "Rock of Ages" and "Abide With Me," were sung. Interment was in the family plot at Royal Oak Burial Park. The following acted as pallbearers: William Chirnside, T. A. Metcalfe, F. L. Stiers and R. Brown.

MANY SHORTS HOLD LINEMEN

Numerous Breaks in Telephone Lines Negative Repair Work in City

All available men in the city conversant with line repair work were brought into action yesterday and to-day in an effort by the British Columbia Telephone Company to restore its city service. There were still about 1,000 lines, many of them serving two or three telephones, out of order at noon to-day, F. C. Paterson, local manager, reported.

Several of the men were working on aerial trolleys, trying to determine shorts in the lines where water had penetrated to the wires between posts. Mr. Paterson explained the men frequently found that after repairing one damaged portion of the line, it shorted at another point and made their work unavailing.

In spite of their difficulties, the men were bringing batches of telephones back into service as they laboured throughout the day in the drenching rain. In the neighborhood of 150 workmen have been employed on the job, and no effort or expense is being spared by the company in its attempt to restore the service.

The British Columbia Electric Company Limited is making progress with its repair work. Headway was being made at Jordan River. If no further aggravations were caused and the weather moderated, officials hoped to have repairs there completed within a week.

BURNS CLUB TO HOLD DINNER

Dr. S. F. Tolmie To Propose Main Toast at Annual Gathering To-morrow

Hon. Dr. F. S. Tolmie will propose the toast of the "Immortal Memory of Robert Burns" at the annual dinner of the Burns Club of Victoria, to be held in the Empress Hotel to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock.

The gathering will be under the patronage of His Honor the Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. J. W. Fordham Johnson.

William A. Jameson will preside at the dinner.

The secretary, E. M. Whyte, reports that far more tickets have been sold this year than last, and fully three hundred are expected to attend the gathering.

Satisfied With Western Trade

Clifford Gainer of Edmonton Sizes Up Business Conditions On Coast

Clifford Gainer, vice-president of Gainers Ltd., Edmonton packers with branches all over the Canadian northwest, left the city to-day for Edmonton after attending the company's sales convention in Vancouver and conferring with James S. Hall, local manager. While in Victoria he was a guest at the Dominion Hotel.

Mr. Gainer, two years ago, managed the "Superiors" ice hockey team which toured Europe to successfully, winning all games.

As a sportsman he is known all over the country.

The visitor expressed himself as well satisfied with business conditions in the west.

Calgary, Jan. 24.—A man named Michalic, one of 500 workers engaged in clearing clogged railway tracks in mountains west of North Bend, B.C., was killed yesterday when tons of snow roared down the mountainside and engulfed him, according to reports received here.

W. A. McKENZIE ISSUES REPLY

Speaker at Tourist Association Luncheon Objects To Editorial

W. A. McKenzie, former Minister of Mines, who delivered an address last week at a gathering sponsored by the Tourist Trade Development Association, has sent the following reply to an editorial which appeared in The Times on Saturday:

"It is unfortunate that through an error appearing in your own paper you have been misled into making a personal attack upon me and seek to raise an issue that does not exist between us.

"In reporting my remarks at the mayor's luncheon on Friday your report made me say that Tacoma business men did not know there was a road out of Victoria. What I did say, and am able to substantiate, is that when, in 1930, the idea of a caravan tour for publicity purposes was first mooted, and a representative from Victoria was speaking at Tacoma in the interests of that tour to Hamilton, he found that there was surprise expressed that it was possible to drive north from Vancouver.

"This situation is easily understood. There were, and I believe are, three separate and distinct publicity bureaus. One, presided over by Mr. Warren, which advertises not only Victoria but Vancouver Island as well. Another which is charged with advertising Vancouver and its immediate vicinity, and the third that of the provincial government, which has all the rest of the province to look after. The caravan tour, to which I alluded, was organized by the latter bureau in the course of its work, and for the purpose of demonstrating that there existed a fine highway as far as Hamilton. That the effort was a tremendous success, I don't think that you or any person will deny.

"Through the error of substitution of the name Victoria for that of Vancouver you have been misled into making a personal attack upon wholly unwarranted grounds. Let me make my position clear and definite. It was not the duty of Victoria to advertise the Cariboo Road, nor was it the duty of Vancouver to do so. The incident arose through a realization by the provincial bureau that ignorance existed as to our roads and it was discovered during the very fine endeavor of that bureau to correct and remedy that deficiency.

"My quotation was made for the sole purpose of stressing the importance of advertising our attractions to our neighbors. I further quoted a remark made to me personally at Medford, Oregon, by a service station manager, who showed his ignorance of British Columbia, by asking if Victoria was an island or city.

"Now let us briefly examine why such ignorance exists. But in case that you again fall into error without a true appreciation of the situation in respect of publicity, let me say definitely that I believe that the Victoria Publicity Bureau under Mr. Warren has done exceptionally fine work and has attained results beyond reasonable expectations based on the funds at the disposal of the bureau. The same is true of the other publicity bureaus. Now, not having sufficient funds to fully advertise, the two city bureaus have, wisely, contributed as much as they could to a fund for the advertising of the Pacific northwest. Excellent returns have been received from this form of investment. But you will agree that, as the purpose of the Puget Sounders, now known as the Evergreen Playground Association, is to attract visitors to the two states and this province, that it would be folly to advertise from that fund in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia. This advertising is done largely in California and Eastern United States—and well done.

"This leaves a field in which little or no advertising is done. Again, I do not blame the bureaus which do not have the funds with which to do it. But, sir, can you tell me how much money has been expended by any British Columbia community on newspaper and magazine advertising in Washington and Oregon in the past five years? Yet, in those two states are several million people. Is it not good business for us to let our immediate neighbors in Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, Portland and the other cities of those two states know the advantages that we possess? I think so. It is not strange that in the absence of advertising there exists ignorance of British Columbia's attractions among a large part of the population there.

"We require more support for well-directed publicity outside of British Columbia, and equally do we need the fine programme of development on our island for which Mayor Leeming is working. These two organizations are separate and distinct and should be kept so, but each can give strength to the other. That is good business.

"Now, Mr. Editor, having outlined my views, I ask you in all fairness to present them to your readers, for I do not think that there exists any difference of viewpoint between us that justifies the attack you made on me based on a mistaken premise.

"I thank you in anticipation, and assuring you that I am firmly convinced of the value of publicity, as well as well-ordered development of the island."

"Love the sweet peas that your people grow."

"Put up your gasoline tax high enough to pay for better roads."

"The roads south from Nanaimo will never be forgotten as the worst on our 4,000-mile trip. Talk about scratch. I had to stop the car to make it settle down."

"Your traffic handling makes me think I must have been in a town of twenty years ago, and I came for quiet restfulness."

"Canada is to be congratulated on her citizenry."

"We were most impressed with the Empress Hotel and expect to spend an entire vacation there."

"We liked the quaintness and different feeling we got as though we were in a far away land."

"Motor routings and direction signs were few and far between."

"Condition of highways quite good."

"Roads were fair."

"Restroom service is poor."

"English atmosphere is your greatest asset."

"South of Campbell River the road was particularly rough."

"I think your people should smile more."

"Thought the ferry service was a little high, but after seeing the extent of the trip we decided the price was justified."

"We were pleased with the originality of houses in the residential section and the uniforms of the police."

"Potter's courteous clerks. Excellent restaurant service."

"The apparent ability of the residents to enjoy life apart from the bustle of too many artificial pleasures and the natural beauty of the countryside make it a unique paradise."

"We were greatly impressed when stopping to watch a cricket match, about which we knew nothing. We inquired of some small boys the rules of the game and their answers were so enlightening and gentlemanly that we felt our own small baseball fans could well take a lesson."

"Think your people much more accommodating than Americans."

"Like Oak Bay very much and spent considerable time there. Think you should give this attractive place more publicity if the residents so desire."

"Would suggest you do not advise tourists to take trip from Victoria to Nanaimo until the roads are better."

"We were unfortunate in our choice of eating places. We were served tomatoes cooked four different ways in one meal."

"I cannot think of a single unpleasant occurrence in our whole visit."

"The people in Victoria did not seem so greedy for business as they were in Vancouver."

"I have no criticism to make except the highways could be improved."

"Real beauty was everywhere. We loved it."

"Service station men were very accommodating and deserve credit as impromptu information bureaus."

"Highway was not in as good condition as on former trips."

"Hunting, fishing and lovely wild country attracted us."

"What attracted us to Vancouver Island was the absence of commercial recreational features."

Weather Adds To V.O.N. Work

Nurses Make Many Fruitless Journeys; Called by Neighbors Alarmed at Non-appearance of Residents

The vagaries of the weather have added immeasurably to the work of the Victorian Order of Nurses in the last few days. In addition to the many additional calls caused by cases of sickness attributable to the weather, the nurses have had to make many unnecessary trips to respond to calls by well-meaning people alarmed at the non-appearance of neighbors.

"Oh, nurse, can you please come at once to Mrs. So-and-So's? We haven't seen her for several days, and I'm sure she must be dead or seriously ill," is the nature of some telephone calls.

Off goes the nurse, to find that Mrs. So-and-So is toasting her toes in hermit-like seclusion in her kitchen, because of the cold or floods, and another fruitless journey has taken up the valuable time of these hard-worked nurses. Willing humanitarian instincts impel them not to ignore any call.

PAY IMPRESSIVE TRIBUTE

The funeral of Kenneth Edwin Roskelley, who passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital on Monday, took place yesterday afternoon. Rev. G. L. Full conducted a very impressive service, attended by relatives and an unusually large gathering of sympathizing friends. The many beautiful floral designs betokened the popularity of the deceased. The hymns sung were "On the Resurrection Morn" and "Brief Life Is Here Our Portion." Miss Enid Cole sang the solo "Abide With Me." The following young men acted as pallbearers: Daryl Johnson, Bruce Rigby, Don Tyson, Lawrence Maundrell, Ray Johns and W. E. Johnson. The remains were laid at rest in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Judgment in the case of Red's Service Station Ltd., to have voided a gasoline contract signed with the Shell Oil Company had been reserved by Mr. Justice Robertson in the Supreme Court.

SHOWS BURDEN OF NEW COSTS

City Needs $9.60 Per Person Owing to Reduced Grants And Social Service Costs

If additional costs of social services, combined with the loss through reduction of provincial government grants to Victoria were distributed equally over every man, woman and child in Victoria, it would cost them just $9.60 each.

Mayor David Leeming made this statement to-day in a further explanation of figures he submitted to the provincial cabinet in the city's brief last Tuesday.

The amount the city has to find through the reduction of grants, together with the costs of social services placed on the city by the government, amount to $376,000. Spread over the entire Victoria population, that leaves a per capita quota of just over $9.60.

The sum is equivalent to an average charge of approximately $40 on every individual property owner on the city tax roll. There are 9,400 such property owners registered on the city list.

COST TO LANDOWNERS

Going into further explanations, the mayor stated the average lot in Victoria carried $1,200 exemptions from taxation. There were 10,000 parcels of land in the city, 4,600 of which have reverted to the city, leaving 13,304 owned by private individuals. The average amount of tax exemptions, according to figures provided by the assessor, were equal to $1,500 on the average privately-owned lot, he said.

Extending his comment, the mayor stated that if each of the 700,000 people who make up the population of British Columbia were required to pay half of what the real property owner in Victoria had to meet through the costs of social service and reduced grants, it would amount to $14,000,000, or over two-thirds of the provincial budget last year.

W. SKILLINGS IS PRESIDENT

Again Chosen Head of Transfer Operators' Association of City and District

Waldo Skillings was re-elected president of the Commercial Operators' Transfer and Storage Association of Victoria and district at the annual meeting in Spoedin's Cafe yesterday evening, when the organization named all officers and adopted by-laws. The organization was formed late last summer, and its object is to advise on proper haulage charges and other work performed by members. It also aims to standardize hauling rates.

Other officers named were: William Heaney, treasurer and secretary pro tem; J. V. Johnson, Harry Warner, John Scouler, Carl W. Stocker, Art Dowell and Wilbur Jeeves, executive. The secretary will be appointed later.

The association will be divided in three sections in which members will be classified. These are: Operators of commercial vehicles, the transfer group, including commercial hauling, furniture moving and storage, and rural transportation and freight lines.

The organization is similar to those formed in Vancouver and other parts of Canada. In Vancouver the association has approached the city council in an effort to secure a by-law to establish standardized rates for work by members, similar to the by-law which set taxi fares.

Following yesterday evening's meeting the members were entertained with an educational reel of pictures shown by Carl Stocker, dealing with the complete production of motor cars.

LANGLEECRAG IN VANCOUVER

Disabled British Freighter Reaches Port; Men Wet For Thirty Days

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 24. — Under tow of the B.C. Salvage Company's steamer Salvage King, the disabled Str. Langleecrag arrived in port this morning and will ship a new propeller and then proceed to Prince Rupert to load wheat for the United Kingdom.

N. E. Holliday, chief officer on Str. Langleebrook, stated that the men had been wet through for the last thirty days, the ship having been engaged that long on the wettest voyage they had made across the Pacific. All the personnel greeted rainy, slush-buried Vancouver with wide grins and warm welcome.

Str. Langleebrook arrived alongside Str. Langleecrag on January 6, and in spite of the very heavy weather made a successful hook-up and started on the long drag to Vancouver. Part of the success of the resultant voyage was due to the seamanship of the officers on the helpless ship, for the question of steering the Langleecrag entered importantly in the result of the undertaking.

Once, for thirty-six hours, the undertaking promised disaster. The first bridle rigged for the towline broke adrift near the joint, and the Langleecrag lay helpless for that period, in tremendous seas, until the line was rigged again. From that time on there was no more towline grief. Captain Carling dropped an anchor off his anchor cable, and dropped seventy-five fathoms of cable on the towing line, to give sufficient spring to the line, and it worked very splendidly.

They just plugged along for seventeen days, averaging well over 100 miles a day, in spite of the wintery gales and enormous waves.

Directors of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau will meet to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

FILM REVIEWS WORLD'S FAIR

Interesting Celluloid Account Of Century of Progress To Be Shown Here

Victoria people who were unable to attend the Century of Progress World's Fair at Chicago in 1934 will have the opportunity of seeing it through the medium of talking pictures at the showrooms of National Motor Company Limited, on Friday and Saturday, January 25 and 26, at 8 o'clock each evening. These pictures were taken and are being reproduced by the Ford Motor Company of Canada Limited and take the audience on an intensely interesting trip through the grounds and buildings, pointing out various attractions. They conclude with a trip through the Ford Building, where the principal exhibits are briefly described.

"The automobile made roads and the roads made commerce and civilization." With this thought in mind, Henry Ford embarked on construction of the $3,000,000 monument to a century of progress. The Ford Building, with its exhibits, was unquestionably the leading industrial attraction at the fair. No expense or effort was spared in carrying out a plan to show millions of visitors the great strides that have been made in transportation methods over a period of 100 years.

This picture is well worth seeing, as it conveys a good impression of a wonderful exhibition, in itself a glowing tribute to the co-operative efforts of the largest industrial firms of the United States. At showings throughout Canada this picture has been most enthusiastically received.

J. K. McKenzie was appointed by the government to-day as a court of revision on provincial assessments for Alberni and Comox. He replaces Charles A. Cox.

Pantorium Win Women's Senior City Basketball Championship

In Second Win Over Unitys To Capture Crown

Alan LeMarquand's Squad Scores 31 to 21 Victory; Win Series By Big Edge

WEST ROADERS BEAT LAKE HILL

Once again coach Alan Le Marquand has placed a team in the provincial basketball playdowns, as his Pantorium girls came through on the long end of a 31 to 21 score against the Unitys at the High School Gymnasium yesterday evening. The game was the second of a two-game total-point series to decide the championship of the women's senior B division. The Pantorium five took the first engagement, 44 to 22, and captured the title with a thirty-two point margin.

It is likely the local champions will move into the senior A division and take on the flashy Province girls of Vancouver some time in March in the B.C. play-offs.

West Road put on a spirited display to defeat Lake Hill 41 to 26 and stay in the running for the men's senior B honors. Lake Hill meets the fast-stepping Colonist Saturday night prior to the big Blue Ribbon-Gilmore Oil game and the winner of this battle will stack up against West Road to see who will engage Moyle-Brown for the title. Colonist found little trouble downing the inexperienced visitors from Colwood and walked off with a 37 to 25 win after a rather listless game.

TOO MUCH EXPERIENCE

Packing too much experience and ball-handling ability, the Pantoriums chalked up their second straight victory at the expense of the Unitys. The latter got away to a very slow start and at the end of the first quarter were trailing 8 to 2. Pantoriums kept up the pressure and with their forward line clicking beautifully ran the score to 20 to 8 at the half.

The third and fourth quarters were bitterly contested with Unitys holding a slight edge, outscoring their flashy opponents 13 to 11, due chiefly to some fine long range shooting. Half way through the final quarter the red shirts, fighting with every ounce of energy they possessed, cut Pantoriums' lead to six points, but the champs always appeared to have an extra trick play to present to their opponents and were beginning to pull away as the gong sounded to end the game.

The Lucille Sparks-Mary Wilson combination was particularly effective and accounted for eighteen points. Reta Week, B. Peden and U. Edwards with eight, six and seven points, respectively, did all the scoring for the losers.

COLONIST WIN EASILY

Playing their first game on the large High School floor, Colwood cagers found the Colonist, men's senior B contenders, too tough an assignment and dropped the exhibition game 37 to 25. The newside got away to a nice start and though baskets were few and far between they were out in front 10 to 3. This lead they greatly increased as the second half got underway and eased up considerably in their play as the game neared its close.

Lake Hill ran into a fighting band of cagers when they stacked up against the West Roaders, and dropped a 41 to 26 decision.

The game was a mixture of good, bad and indifferent basketball, with both teams checking close. Lake Hill must have left their shooting eyes at home, especially during the first half, when they were only able to ring up eight points in twenty minutes of play.

Clarence Sluggett opened the night's performance for West Road with a nice shot from the foul zone. Bud Mitchell sank a free throw seconds later to break the ice for Lake Hill. Due to the close checking and reckless play, the score at the ten-minute mark was 3 to 1 for West Road. Play opened up considerably from then until the half, with the West Roaders skyrocketing their score to 17 to 8 by the rest period as Clarence Sluggett, George Lennon and K. Young sank some beautiful long and short range baskets.

PLAY CLOSER

The battle waged much closer during the final period with the winners outscoring their opponents 24 to 18. R. Mitchell was outstanding in the half as he sank the ball for six beautiful baskets for twelve points to tie for the scoring honors with Clarence Sluggett. As the game drew to a close, Lake Hill cut into their opponents' lead considerably, and came within nine points of tieing the score. A last minute splurge of baskets proved too much for them, however, and they dropped behind fifteen points at the bell.

Teams and scores follow:

Pantorium—2d. Peden 3, E. Bernard, L. Sparks 11, M. Wilson 7, G. Taylor, R. Bethell 5, E. Trotter, P. Carney, F. Strain and E. Peden 5. Total 31.

Unitys—R. Weeks 6, E. Peden 6, V. Edwards 7, E. Johnson, D. Elston, L. Laird, E. Sloton 2 and T. Thomson. Total 21.

Lake Hill—B. Mitchell 11, Cunningham 1, Atkinson 2, Jones, R. Mitchell 12, Bates, Atkinson and McConnell. Total 26.

Colonist—Gilpe 5, Clarke 8, McKenzie 2, Scott 6, Moore 10 and Elliott 6. Total 37.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

THRILLING to the roar of the crowd, perhaps not with all the fire that marked their ventures into hockey's big time, eight reinstated professionals now lend their skill to the colorful hockey panorama around Sudbury, Ont., known as the Nickel Belt Hockey League. No centre in Canada boasts more new faces than do the squads providing winter entertainment for the nickel district's fans. In face of this, it is the former moneyed players who are furnishing the color. Many of them are rapidly rounding into form which made them good enough for major and minor leagues a few years ago.

To date the Sudbury Canadian Legion entry has offered the patrons three former National leaguers. Outstanding among this trio is Joe Ironstone, who at one time guarded the nets for New York Americans when professional hockey made its dazzling debut in Madison Square Gardens. Ironstone, one of the few Hebrews to reach the charmed circle of hockey, has rounded into mid-season shape with surprising speed. The fine showing of the Legion squad is laid to his eagle-like eyes. He started his professional hockey career with the Ottawa Senators twelve years ago. He remained at the capital for a couple of seasons and then went to New York. Later he was traded to Niagara Falls, Toronto and London, ending his moneyed career with Syracuse in 1931. He was reinstated by the Canadian Legion Amateur Hockey Association last year and this season began his puck career over again.

Out in front of Ironstone are the two Geralds, Green and Munro. Both of these players regained their simon pure status last year. Of the pair, Green is showing the greatest recovery to form and is a power on the Legion defence. Green saw most of his professional hockey with the International League. He started with Hamilton, shifting to Teddy Oke's Toronto Millionaires. He finished his pro campaign with Oshawa in the Canpro League in 1930. Munro started in Sault Ste. Marie, later coming to Sudbury. He ventured into the moneyed circus in 1934-35 with Montreal Maroons, and wound up with Tulsa Oilers in the American Association in 1931. Rapidly rounding into shape, he is still a little weak in the legs.

The Legion squad also has the services of two ex-professional puck chasers on the coaching line with Shorty Green, one of the brightest major league stars ever to leave the north, doing the principal mentoring. Green went to Hamilton Tigers in 1921-22 and from there to the New York Americans, a team he later coached. Sammy Rothschild, who patrolled the boards for Montreal Maroons from 1922 to 1929, is assistant coach to Green. He guided the Sudbury Cub Wolves to the Dominion junior title in 1932.

At one time able to paper his house with press clippings of his doings in the big time, Babe Donnelly again finds himself an amateur. He is holding down a defence post with Falconbridge. Donnelly made his mark in the N.H.L. with the Montreal Maroons and wound up his pro career with London in 1930. Actually the Babe achieved his greatest fame with the old Soo Greyhounds, Allan Cup champions in 1924.

Two years ago Bill Regan brought his pro career to an end when he saluted farewell to the New York Rangers. To-day, although not reinstated, he is coaching the Creighton Mine squad. Cec. Daly, the only other playing ex-professional in the Nickel Belt conference, is taking them out on the Frood Mine defence. He was reinstated last year after a short career with Tulsa Oilers. Last but not least comes Alex. McKinnon, who is acting as chief referee of the circuit. He was reinstated last year. McKinnon started his professional career with Hamilton and later went to New York Americans when the team transfer was effected with the idea of experimenting with professional hockey in the big United States city. He went from New York to Pittsburgh and concluded his active season at Chicago. The presence of the former big lights is making the Nickel Belt circuit a rather spectacular show this season. Crowds were never better.

The goal-conscious Winnipeg Monarchs have rolled up in their current hockey tour of Britain and Europe looks even more impressive than their undefeated record. Midway through January the almost invincible Monarchs, senior amateur champions of Manitoba last winter, had tallied 149 goals compared with a mere seventeen which opposition teams had managed to score. They achieved this in the course of winning twenty-three out of twenty-four games played. The other game—against the Praha Lawn Tennis Club—ended in a scoreless tie. Hannes Rivera, Norm Yellowlees and Archie Creighton were the big three of the scoring records, Romeo leading the pack with twenty-seven counters to his credit. Four teams achieved the distinction of scoring two goals against the touring hockeyists, Francais Volants of Paris, Richmond Hornets of London, the Berlin Skating Club and Sportklub Rotweiss in Munich.

Vancouver Backs Gala Suggestions

Victoria's suggestion for two British Columbia swimming championships, one in Vancouver on March 9 and another here on March 16, have received hearty support from Vancouver swimming clubs, according to a despatch received here to-day. The message stated the mainlanders would co-operate to the fullest extent possible with the local interests in staging the meets, badly needed by competitive swimmers both here and in the Terminal City.

GILMORE OIL IN TOP SPOT

Opponents for Blue Ribbons Saturday Move Ahead In Seattle League

Gilmore Oil basketballers who meet the Blue Ribbons in an inter-city exhibition clash at the Victoria High School gym on Saturday evening, moved into first place in the Northwest Basketball League in Seattle yesterday evening by defeating the DeMolay quintette, 41 to 27.

Gilmores now lead the Italian Athletic Club squad by a one-half game margin, having played and won one more game than the Italians.

Ed Grant started for the Oilers in their victory, scoring no less than sixteen points. Other scorers for Gilmore were: Hanover 4, Fuller 4, Lee 6 and Scott 4. Joe Murray turned in a great game for the DeMolays, outscoring his check Fuller, 10 to [illegible]

U.B.C. WINS IN OVERTIME

British Columbia Hockeyists Defeat Washington Varsity By 4 to 3 Score

Seattle, Jan. 24.—The University of British Columbia hockey team scored a goal in overtime at the Ice Arena last evening to defeat the University of Washington, 4 to 3, in the opening contest of a three-game series for a trophy the Northerners won a dozen years ago.

Some 700 spectators sat in on the resumption of play between the schools after the long interlude, and appeared thoroughly to enjoy the proceedings, enlivened as they were by the efforts of a yell leader and some fancy skating put on between periods by the Misses McPhail, McDonald and Macfadyen.

HUSKIES PRESS

Throughout the first two periods the Huskies did the bulk of the attacking, but brilliant work by Andrews, the U.B.C. goaltender, balked them time and again.

Doug Mayer, the smartest-looking hockey player on the ice, scored a solo goal for Washington in the opening session, and, after the British Columbians had tied it up on Lepbert's conversion of Trumel's pass, Mayer counted again to give the Don McKenzie's boys a 2 to 1 lead.

VISITORS MOVE AHEAD

The third period was hardly under way when Little popped in the tying goal for U.B.C. and a few minutes later Hager sent the visitors one up

Mayer's third goal of the evening, scored on a pass from Litsey, evened the count again and sent the game into overtime, but Little delivered the clinching marker for U.B.C. half-way through the extra session.

Caliente Will Delay Opening

Action Taken After Two California Plants Are Given Additional Racing

Los Angeles, Jan. 24. — Lou Anger, general manager of the race track at Agua Caliente, today said that the Mexican track would probably not open its regular meeting on February 24, as originally planned, but that "even more racing" was projected for the future.

Anger's announcement came in the wake of a decision by the California Horse Racing Board extending the meeting at Santa Anita, the new course near here, until March 9, and ordering Bay Meadows to open within a week from that time.

The conflict of racing here with the Agua Caliente programme was proclaimed by friends of the Mexican track as a severe blow to the below-the-border plant.

"In view of the extension granted Santa Anita, and the thirty-day meeting granted Bay Meadows to follow it, Caliente is not likely to launch its thirty-one-day meeting on February 24 as planned," said Anger.

"However, we expect some new racing dates by Sunday, and I should say that Caliente will have even more racing than originally planned."

Davos, Switzerland, Jan. 24.—The Winnipeg Monarchs hockey team won its fourth straight victory in the present world hockey series yesterday evening by defeating the Italian national team 9 to 0.

ANOTHER WIN FOR JOE LOUIS

The statement that he would draw the color line in defence of his title hardly had been uttered by Max Baer when Joe Louis, Detroit's dusky knockout artist, added another to his list of victims by scoring a technical kayo over Hans Birkie, German heavyweight, in a ten-rounder at Pittsburgh. Here is an action shot of the fight, showing Louis easily evading a wild right-hand punch of Birkie. The verdict was Louis's eleventh knockout in fourteen victories.

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL IS ON WAY TO UNITED STATES FOR LATEST SPEED ASSAULT

Southampton, Eng., Jan. 24.—Sir Malcolm Campbell loaded his sleek new racing Bluebird aboard the Aquitania yesterday and sailed for the United States and a new series of assaults on auto speed records.

A few weeks hence the British speed king hopes to send his remodeled, streamlined juggernaut roaring down the sands of Daytona Beach at 300 miles an hour, or almost forty-eight miles faster than on his last attempt.

Many Entries Listed For Ping Pong Play

Keen Table Tennis Matches Are Expected As Former Champions Ready To Defend Titles; Entries Close Monday Evening

Entries for the city table tennis championship, scheduled to get under way at the A.O.F. Hall on Wednesday, January 30, are coming in fast, it was reported today. The championship play will last for three days and some fine exhibitions of ping pong are anticipated.

From the calibre of games witnessed in league play this week it is expected that the present champion, Wilmot Brown-Cave, will have his work cut out to retain the cup.

Last year's runner-up was Lionel Cox, and he is back in the fight again this year. Fred Cabeldu of the Beach Hotel squad, Eric Cox of the Glenshiel Hotel, and Hy Lowe, sensational Chinese exponent of the celluloid ball game, should go a long way in the tournament.

Some new players are also entered, including Jimmy Simpson and Clarence Brynjolfson, Coach Lines stars, and Vic Tulley, a left hander. Altogether in the singles play a great scramble for the silverware is expected and city ping pong enthusiasts should be treated to some flashy matches.

The city championship is open to both men and women, and there are some fine trophies to be played for. The secretary reports that there has already been filed a good entry of women players.

The last year's brother team of Lionel and Eric Cox will defend their doubles championship.

All players desirous of entering the tournament are asked to get in touch with the secretary, Lionel Cox, phone E 7022, as soon as possible. Entries will close at 6 o'clock on Monday evening.

There will be no league games the week of the city championship.

BAER'S SUIT WILL GO ON

Heavyweight Boxing Champion Seeks $15,000 Damages From J. H. Lorimer

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 24.—Max Baer's managerial problems bubbed up in superior court yesterday when his suit for $15,000 damages against a former manager, J. Hamilton Lorimer, was assigned to the calendar at the request of Attorney Philip S. Ehrlich.

The suit, filed two years ago, had never been pressed, pending disposition of other litigation in Sacramento, wherein the heavyweight boxing champion sought to terminate his contract with Lorimer.

Ehrlich said the present suit will seek to establish that Lorimer misrepresented facts in the drawing up of a three-party contract several years ago between Lorimer, Baer and the latter's current manager, Ancil Hoffman.

"We charge Lorimer received $15,000 more than he represented to Baer when the contract that made Hoffman a financially interested party was drawn up," Ehrlich said.

Glen Cunningham To Oppose Venzke

Boston, Jan. 24.—Gene Venzke's chances of gaining his fourth straight Curley Mile victory in Saturday's K. of C. track meet at the Boston Garden slumped yesterday when Glenn Cunningham, the great Kansas record holder, notified officials he would start against the improved Pennsylvania star.

McLARNIN IS MUCH SOUGHT

New York and Chicago Promoters Want Him for Bout Against Jack Hood

Vancouver, Jan. 24.—Jimmy McLarnin may make his first 1935 ring appearance in a defence of his world welterweight title against Jack Hood, England, in either New York or Chicago, Pop Foster, McLarnin's manager, announced here yesterday evening.

"I have received offers from New York and Chicago promoters to match Jimmy against Hood before meeting the winner of the Barney Ross-Frankie Klick fight," Pop said. "Both Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of Madison Square Garden, and Col. John Eliipatrick, Garden president, have asked to have the bout in New York, while Nate Lewis wants it for Chicago.

"We are still dickering, but as soon as the weather clears I'm going east to try to complete all arrangements."

LANE ENTERS NET FINALS

To Play Des Bleasdale, Defending Champ, for Badminton Club Title

Champions of the Victoria Badminton Club for 1934-5 will be named following games at the Willows to-night. The first clash is scheduled to start at 7.30 o'clock and final games will follow in all divisions.

Yesterday evening, George Lane hurdled the last barrier which stood between him and the men's singles final when he downed Frank Tyrell in a gruelling three-set match.

Lane took the first set 15-11, dropped the second 3-15 and came back to win the third 15-10 after a great battle.

To-night he will play Des Bleasdale, defending champion, for the title.

California Rugby Tour Appears Off

Vancouver Rugby Union Proposes to Cancel Trip Owing to Difficulty In Selecting Team; Suggests That Remaining McKechnie Cup Matches Be Played

Vancouver, Jan. 24. — Recommendations that the California tour next month by a British Columbia team be abandoned and that the remaining McKechnie Cup game, to be played by Victoria in Vancouver, be held in March were made at a meeting of the Vancouver Rugby Union here yesterday evening.

The meeting definitely opposed the southern trip on the grounds there was not sufficient time left in which to choose a representative British Columbia side and that it would be unfair, both to the California teams and to the British Columbia squad, to send a makeshift line-up.

WILL NOT ACT

J. C. Oswald and Captain Dobbie, Vancouver members of the committee appointed to select the touring team, said they would not act on the committee if it attempted to pick a team under present conditions.

It was explained that the Vancouver union's schedule would be resumed February 9 and would finish about the end of the month, and that two Saturdays in March would be set aside for the McKechnie Cup fixtures. Only four games remain to be played in the Vancouver union to complete the season.

The meeting voted to accept any date proposed by Victoria for holding the Rounsefell Cup game.

Victoria rugby officials were silent to-day when questioned regarding the latest suggestions from Vancouver on the California tour and the McKechnie Cup series. Regarding the proposal of the Mainlanders that a cup match be played here Saturday, it was stated by local moguls that such a plan was impossible as all Victoria playing fields are unplayable and unless conditions improve they will be tied up even longer.

From the outlook to-day it appears that the trip to the south by the B.C. rep team is just about all washed up, with the remaining McKechnie Cup matches a possibility if weather and ground conditions improve.

Ross-Klick Bout Off Till Monday

Miami, Fla., Thursday, Jan. 24.—A cold wave rolled into Miami early to-day forcing postponement of the Barney Ross-Frankie Klick encounter for the former's synthetic junior welterweight title from to-night until next Monday evening.

JIMMY WARD IS IMPROVED

Star Forward of Montreal Maroons Recovers From Accident at Boston

Boston, Jan. 24.—Jimmy Ward, star right-winger of the Montreal Maroons, is still in hospital here as a result of his collision with Eddie Shore, Boston defence ace, in the National Hockey League fixture played Tuesday night, in which the Bruins managed to win by a 4 to 3 score. Ward will be out of the game indefinitely. His condition was reported as "very good" yesterday evening.

The accident occurred in the first period, when Ward, heading for the Boston goal, collided with Shore. Although he stayed in the game for a time after the collision, Ward collapsed in the second period, and it was feared he suffered a severe concussion. He was removed to hospital at once, where it is reported he is resting comfortably and out of danger.

Ward is a valued member of the Montreal club and has played a big role in keeping his team in second place in the Canadian section of the loop. He is a part of the Maroons' first string forward line, and is one of the cleverest stick handlers in the game to-day.

CALGARY IN ICE VICTORY

Prairie Club Comes Through With 5 to 1 Win Over Pace-setting Seattle Hawks

Calgary, Jan. 24.—For two months Northwest Hockey League moguls glumly looked on as Seattle Sea Hawks blithely romped into a commanding lead, defeated only twice. To-day, however, the four opposition mentors grinned with satisfaction as they thought again of Seattle's 5 to 1 defeat at the hands of Calgary here yesterday evening, the second defeat in as many nights for the Sea Hawks on their current prairie road trip.

Fresh from a 7 to 1 beating at Edmonton Eskimos' hands on Tuesday night, the Sea Hawks stepped out here yesterday evening prepared to show, as they have twice before, that they had only temporarily halted in their titlebound dash. They failed, however, to take into consideration Calgary's new player-manager, crafty Steve Adams, and Smoky Harris, crack Calgary winger, who returned to the line-up after a two-weeks' absence with a broken jaw.

HARRIS SCORES

Harris soloed through to open the scoring with the only goal of the first period.

Adams laid down a pass that Pete Sands snapped up for another prairie goal in the middle session. Chubby Scott added an unassisted goal a few minutes later and Adams topped off the period by batting in Scott's assist.

Harris repeated again early in the final frame and Johnny Mowbrey, with a solo effort, saved Seattle from a shutout.

Varsity Cagers In League Lead

Vancouver, Jan. 24. — Varsity basketball team took the lead in the Inter-city Basketball League with a 36 to 34 win over Adanacs here yesterday evening in a league fixture.

The Adanacs had command in the first half, the score at the brother being 11 to 6 in their favor. The students, however, came back in the second half and played a stellar game, outscoring their opponents 30 to 12, enabling them to win by a twelve-point margin.

President Fuchs also promised to "lay his cards on the table," and discuss frankly the situation into which the judge had plunged the club by relinquishing the lease on Braves' Field, leaving the team without a home.

South African Wool To Japan

Union Asks Oriental Nation To Buy More To Balance Trade

By PERCY WHITING
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

Tokio, Jan. 24.—The Union of South Africa has shown a keen interest in its trade with Japan, and this has been given further proof by the arrival in Tokio this week of a full-fledged South African trade commissioner, Andrew Brennan.

Japanese exports of cotton, rayon, silk and wool textiles have been increasing in recent years to South Africa, as to many other countries, and the South African government has hinted rather plainly to the Japanese consul-general in Cape Town that Japan must buy more wool, or else there is likelihood of Japanese goods being restricted by higher duties or quotas.

Negotiations along these lines, probably with the inauguration of a trade treaty in the offing, will no doubt be prominent in Mr. Brennan's activities.

COMPENSATING FUND

The Japanese government quite approves of this idea in principle, and while the Japanese woolen mill owners are not particularly enthusiastic, owing to the cheaper price of Australian wool, with whose quality they are entirely satisfied, they recognize the force of the argument for protecting Japanese exports.

Accordingly they are co-operating, on the basis, however, of not losing money owing to the higher South African price. Such a difference is met by means of a compensating fund from a surcharge on export freight charges.

The South Africans want Japan to buy 50,000 or 60,000 bales a year, but the Japanese idea is about half of that.

The whole matter has been given added stimulus by the fact that South Africa, which has been buying more from Germany than selling to that country, has just succeeded in getting Germany to agree to buy an equivalent value of wool, up to £3,600,000 worth by May 30, against her sales to South Africa to September 30 this year.

It is conceded here that this will make German competition more active with Japanese goods in South Africa. The eventual main sufferer is likely to be Australia, which sells far more to Japan than she buys.

DINNER SERVICE FOR ROYAL PAIR

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 24.—A china dinner service specially designed and manufactured by W. T. Copeland and Son, Stoke-on-Trent, has been accepted as a gift from the British Pottery Manufacturers' Association by the Duke and Duchess of Kent.

The firm has made tea services for every monarch of the country since the days of George IV.

The service, by the express wish of the Duke, is of the simplest design. It consists of a genuine blue band one-eighth of an inch wide, with a gold edge and line, and the crest of the Duke and Duchess executed on the rim in heraldic colors. The form of the Royal Arms which has been used is identical with that on a service which belonged to the Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria and great-great-grandfather of the present Duke.

The whole of the panelling, engraving and painting has been done by hand and is an example of the intricacy of the work. For the engraving of the crest alone, each piece of ware had to be fired five times.

London (Canadian Press).—Many English critics regard Bunny Austin as a greater Davis Cup tennis player than Fred Perry. Austin, they say, brings his game to a higher level in cup play than Perry is able to achieve, but the slightly-built Bunny cannot stand the rigors of tournament play.

Aluminum From Japanese Mines

Company Expects To Work Up To Export Level

By Percy Whiting, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

Tokio, Jan. 24.—Confirmatory of previous reports that Japan is preparing to supply her own aluminum requirements—cutting down her imports first from countries that have reduced their purchases of her own goods, which applies to Canada as shown by recent statistics—the Japan Electric Chemical Industrial Co. will begin aluminum production on a 7,000-ton-a-year scale this spring, according to its president, Nobutaro Mori.

Mr. Mori is quoted in a telegram received in Tokio from Zenra Kodtu, Chosen (Korea), where in neighboring hills he has been inspecting alunite deposits, as saying he expects his company will commence turning out aluminum in April or May at the rate of twenty tons a day.

Some time ago the alunite deposits were discovered in mountainous properties belonging to the Japan Electric Chemical Industrial Co., and to the big Sumitomo Corporation of Osaka. These properties are at Konan, Kainan-Gun, Zenra Nando.

NEW PROCESSES

The J.E.C.I. deposits are in Mts. Seinan, Kenhisen and other hills, and those of Sumitomo in Mt. Gyokumaisan. Japanese chemical engineers says that by processes elaborated here these alunite deposits are fully capable of producing unlimited quantities of aluminum on a remunerative basis.

Mr. Mori, who headed a party of chemical engineers to study the possibilities of the deposits on the spot, is quoted as remarking: "There are untold millions of tons of alunite in Mounts Seinan and Kenhisen, capable of providing an inexhaustible supply of aluminum.

"While in other countries bauxite is used as the main source of aluminum, we in Japan will produce both aluminum and potassium sulphate from alunite. I anticipate Japan will not only produce all her own aluminum requirements, but in a few years will be competing with other countries in exports of the metal. The army is giving us much support and encouragement in establishing our aluminum industry."

MADE IN CANADA

YOU, TOO, WILL BE AMAZED AT THIS NEW WAY TO WASH—READ THESE FACTS—YOU'LL BE GLAD YOU DID!

New Million Dollar Granulated Soap Invention Combines Safety With Utmost Speed. At Last A Safe Fast-Washing Soap That Actually Loosens Dirt Out of Clothes in 15 Minutes' Soaking—And Gets Them 4 to 5 Shades Whiter Than Other Soaps Without One Bit of Scrubbing or Boiling.

● New and Improved OKYDOL is different from any bar, flake, chip or ordinary granulated soap you ever used. Different in the way it's made and in the results it gets.

Due to its patented process of making, OKYDOL dissolves instantly and completely in hard or soft water, and does three things:

First—gives thick 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt and stains—even in the hardest water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.

Second—sets up a unique, new "soak and flush" washing action. 15 minutes' soaking loosens dirt out so it flushes away—without scrubbing or boiling.

You cut washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine. You save long hours of soaking, scrubbing and boiling—you get clothes clean and white without washboard wear and tear.

And yet, due to its special formula—its special protective combination of mild soap ingredients—OKYDOL is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, and fabrics!

Millions of women are quitting old-fashioned soaps in favor of the new and improved OKYDOL. Whatever your present favorite, try OKYDOL next time you wash. Buy a package today. You'll never go back to slower soaps or harsher soaps again. The Procter & Gamble Company of Canada, Ltd.

UTTERLY AMAZED TO FIND A SAFE "NO-SCRUB" SOAP

Mrs. Anna Miley writes:

"In times past I had had very bad results with 'no-scrub' soaps. They ruined my fine clothes, hurt the fabrics and irritated my hands. So naturally I was skeptical about the claims you made for Oxydol. But one day my neighbor and I were shopping. She bought three packages of Oxydol and said, 'I couldn't keep house without Oxydol.' I decided to get a package and try once again. Perhaps Oxydol was different! I tried it out on a few pieces of clothing that very night. To my astonishment it removed good, rich suds that literally sucked out the dirt and left my clothes whiter and sweeter and cleaner than I ever had them before. Now I use it regularly for every washing week. I'm so thrilled I wanted to tell all my friends about it! I only wish everyone could know my experience with Oxydol. If they did they'd never be without it."

For the information of "C. L." and others like him, let me say that the C.C.F. is concerned not with abstract theories and diehard principles, but with the bringing into being of the co-operative commonwealth before we are all in our graves.

I regret having to spoil your correspondent's publication, but I can inform him that I have consistently pointed out, to various audiences, that there is no theoretical right of the capitalists to compensation. The value of industrial concerns to their present owners lies in the right of them owners to exploit labor in the operation of those concerns. That exploitation to-day is legally condoned as good business. The moment that right is removed the value of the concerns sinks to the value of the scrap material in them and therefore no legal right to compensation will then exist.

That is theory and as such it will no doubt be excellent material for many pleasant hours of discussion by the armchair theorists in front of the fire. But theories are not so very much solace to those who are wondering whether starvation or the co-operative commonwealth is going to win the race.

If we are correct in our standpoint that when the machines are not running full time we can produce unlimited wealth, and if, as we believe, the granting of a small fraction of that wealth in the form of compensation to the present owners of industry is going to cut short these days of desperate poverty for the millions and make easier the transition—then I say leave the critics to their armchairs and their "principles" and their comfortable theories and let us get on with the job. Workers of the world, split hairs, you have nothing to lose but your scalp!

Finally, let me say that the subject of my speech was a planned economy in operation, and not the period of transition. If Mr. Duff really believes I do not know the difference I am of course cut to the quick, but regret I am unable to do much about it. In opening my speech at Royal Oak I stated that I had no idea when the enemy, both within our ranks and without, would be overcome to the point when the planned economy would be instituted. After reading this latest effort of the Kilkenny cats I will open my next speech in precisely the same way.

"SCIENTISTS AND RELIGION"

To the Editor:—Your correspondent in a recent issue of The Times in letting, as he says, "facts speak for themselves," has once more proven the venality of the West of God where we read: "Not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called," but "Blessed are the poor (in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven: blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth!" He proves furthermore the omnipotence of Christ. Who, foreknowing the apostasy of these last days said with sorrow: "When the Son of Man cometh, shall He find the faith on the earth?"

Your correspondent does not seem to know that the apostle Paul, inspired by the Holy Spirit, referring to the wisdom of this world, without God, entreats believers in Christ to "avoid profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so-called," telling them to 'beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ!" For, says he, 'the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men!"

"The world by wisdom knows not God," but "God has chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise!" However, God has not left the world altogether in the hands of the meek and lowly and today, as in the past, the elite of the world of learning are outstanding believers in God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit, notwithstanding Professor J. A. Leuba's statistics to the contrary!

If, as this professor says, a scientist "trained more than twenty years ago" is now out of date, the text books having undergone such radical changes, then we do thank God for those scientists who are basing their faith and knowledge on the unchanging Book of books which, in spite of having been written from 2,000 to 3,500 years ago, is still up-to-date and ahead of all mere man's writings.

Believers in God need not fear any number of unbelievers, some patting-self-on-back statisticians are publishing as proof positive that there is no God, for they (the believers) are "compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses," which knowledge will be an incentive to "run with patience the race that is set before them, looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of their faith!"

Your correspondent's letter, although having not a single constructive thought in it, but being rather destructive from beginning to end, is by that very fact confirming the prophecies of God's inerrant Word which says: "There shall be false teachers among you—denying the Lord that bought them—from such turn away!"

"Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved!"

A SUGGESTION TO C.C.F. LEADERS

To the Editor:—I am a reader of your splendid paper and fully appreciate the very fair way you treat articles which express a different thought to that of yours.

I might say that I am not anxious to give expression to my thoughts in public, but at times it does seem hard not to.

I noticed several articles written in a late paper in which two quite prominent exponents of the C.C.F. were rangling over some trivial difference in their party. I am very sorry indeed to see this as it is just what the old line parties glory in.

Would it not be better if these two gentlemen would get together and settle their differences privately, and if they cannot do so, why not leave the matter of contention to an authority to settle? Believe me, this quibbling in the C.C.F. is not in the best interests of the party. I have heard so many express themselves in that very way. They will lose the confidence of the people to a very great measure.

After all, what does it matter to us just what branch of socialism we accept? No doubt socialism in the old form, as is capitalism, is obsolete. For my part it matters little what it is called so long as it gives us what we are so badly in need of at the present time. That is, a system of equity and justice, or an application of the Golden Rule put into politics and practised diligently. I believe we should look forward and expect to find Christian principles applied in our economic system (Do unto others as you would have them do unto you).

Most of all, we need men endowed with Christian principles and courage, men who can guide the destiny of our country through the changing times and bring us back to happiness. Not those who are in politics for the money's sake, but for the love and betterment of mankind.

You may say: "Where can we find such men?" I believe the time is very near when we shall have such men ready to serve us.

If our economic system is to be based on co-operation, then why not expect our leaders to be a little more tolerant and sympathetic towards each other now?

Hoping to see more co-operation and harmony in the C.C.F.

THE ASSEMBLY LINE

To twirl of wrench and hammer blows;
To eye alert and skilful hand
Of men above and men below.
From what was ore and stone and sand
And chaos but a week ago
The finished motor car is planned.

Come rug and wheel and disk and gear
Precisely to its proper place;
Even the strikers' picket here
Slows rhythm and an upward pace,
And timed to the music will appear a
The mirror for mildly's face.

Not this the sum of one man's mind.
Slowly progress on the earth is slow,
But such precision men could find
Ages have had to come and go,
And here are countless dreams combined
Within a single hammer's blow.

And sometimes as I stand and stare
Upon this miracle of gears,
I seem to see assembled there
The brave dead men of other years
Whose dream of conquering tedious care
In every turning wheel appears.

HUNGER

Stark hunger looks at me out of the eyes
Of the beggar I pass in the crowded street;
My heart is heavy because of his sighs,
And my steps must stumble for his tired feet.

So out of my little I give a share,
For if he were left with a mouldy crust
To shake in the sleet and the bitter air
I would choke on my food as men choke on dust.

In other eyes, there is hunger, too,
The urge of a spirit that must be fed;
Ah, seekers, what can I offer you
Who have wants less simple than meat and bread?

I would not turn back, I would not deny
The light you crave or the truths half-guessed;
But what can I give that will satisfy
Your souls, when mine goes on the self-same quest?

Young People's Societies

Metropolitan Young People's Society—"Arts and Crafts on Review" was the subject for the regular Monday evening meeting of the Metropolitan Young People's Society. Owing to the inclement weather the usually large crowd was not present. However, those who did attend spent an enjoyable evening. Miss Hazel McPhee was in charge of the feature, being assisted by Lorne Ritchie, Catherine Craig and Ellis Waller. Lorne Ritchie gave a very interesting and instructive lesson in sketching the human face—illustrating and explaining both the use of the cube and oval method in constructing a picture of a man's or woman's head. This was followed by a couple of recitations by Miss Catherine Craig, given in her delightful style. Miss Ellis Waller then taught a kindergarten class lesson which proved very entertaining. Miss Ruth Saunders conducted a jolly period of recreation after which "Abide With Me" was sung in closing.

Next week all the young people are urged to be present. The theme for the evening will be "A New Person in a New Home." Rev. E. F. Church, Donald McCain and Rev. J. H. A. Warr will put on a fine programme. There will also be several musical numbers. On Sunday evening next a special "Young People's Service" will be held.

FIRST UNITED

On Monday evening the First United Young People's meeting took the form of a Scotch gathering. The guest speaker was Rev. W. H. Smith, D.D., of Vancouver, who gave an interesting lecture entitled, "Scottish Superstitions," which was illustrated from "Burns' Hallowe'en Poems." Dr. W. O. Wilson thanked Mr. Smith for his lecture. Mrs. Carver gave a Scotch solo. Next Monday night will be a "Mystery Trip."

MANY SLIDES BLOCK RAILS

Transportation In B.C. Becomes Worse as More Washouts Reported

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 24.—Railways to-day reported the transportation situation in British Columbia had turned from bad to worse overnight and prospects of resuming any kind of service through the Fraser Valley or south were as dim as ever.

Hundreds of men worked to clear slides and repair washouts over a stretch of several hundred miles, but more and more slides made their task seem almost futile.

One redeeming feature was the partial clearing of the Kettle Valley line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Train No. 11 from Nelson, due here Monday, was moved overnight from near Brookmere, where it had been stalled in the snow, to Spence's Bridge. Fears had been entertained the train's passengers might have been short of food, but that danger was now past.

STORMBOUND AT YALE

Train No. 2, which left Vancouver eastbound Sunday night, was still stormbound at Yale. Train No. 2, due here Monday, was marooned near North Bend and trains No. 1 and No. 3, due here Monday and Tuesday respectively, were also at North Bend. They had been consolidated at Revelstoke and managed to progress to North Bend after slides had been cleared further inland.

Trains due here Tuesday and Wednesday have been consolidated at Calgary and held there pending developments.

The C.P.R. attempted to operate a local train up the Fraser Valley last night, but it was forced to turn back at Coquitlam. Tremendous slides and miles of terrible snow and flood conditions in the Hussey district made rail traffic impossible.

City Stock Market Remains Paralyzed

Communications Out of Vancouver Still Disrupted; Wire to Seattle and Radio Station Flooded With Calls; No Eastern Quotations Obtainable

The stock market in the city continued in a state of paralysis to-day as men worked feverishly to repair the fifteen miles of broken wires outside Vancouver.

Only one slow wire was working between Vancouver and Seattle and this was snowed under with calls. Brokers attempted to get through orders by means of the wireless station at Point Grey, but at 11.15 o'clock the station refused to take any more messages. They were cluttered up with orders which would take hours to transmit. No confirmation was received for orders which were placed.

Except for the Vancouver board, other boards in stockbrokers' offices were blank. A sprinkling of figures here and there were obtained by various methods.

One or two quotations on New York exchanges were obtained by wireless. One stockbroker carried the information that "General Electric was again leading the New York market on a very large volume. Cotton prices were off two cents." These statements were taken from radio news bulletins. A few figures on grain futures were got by long distance telephone with Seattle.

SHEEP CREEK MINE UNDER INJUNCTION

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 24.—At the suit of Aubrey E. Sjoquist, Vancouver, Mr. Justice D. A. McDonald in Supreme Court to-day granted an injunction against Bayonne Gold Mines Ltd., Victoria, restraining it from selling, disposing, or in any wise dealing with the Bayonne group of mineral claims on Sheep Creek in the Nelson mining district.

Leave was reserved to the plaintiff to apply on February 1 to continue the injunction.

The Bayonne group was owned by James W. Gerrard of New York, former United States Ambassador to Germany, who gave an option on the claims to Albert C. Frost of Seattle. Frost is cited a co-defendant with A. C. Frost and Co., also of Seattle.

A declaration that he is entitled to the Bayonne group is claimed by Sjoquist in a writ issued out of the Supreme Court to-day. He also claims ownership of Frost's and Frost and Company's interest in 200,686 shares of Bayonne Gold Mines Ltd.

Costly Collapse Is Investigated

Vancouver Council Looks Into Fall of Building Under Snow

Vancouver, Jan. 24. — The city council is having a complete investigation made into the collapse of the Forum rink at Hastings Park. The decision was made yesterday at a meeting enlivened by a young woman who was finally ejected after voicing an emphatic personal opinion of the aldermen, collectively and individually.

Standing near Walter Lock, president of the Vancouver Exhibition Association, owners of the Forum, the young woman made frequent interruptions while aldermen were discussing the necessity for an inquiry into the building's collapse under snow last Monday.

When she refused to stop interrupting the chairman, the latter ordered a policeman to escort her out of the chamber.

"You're just a bunch of fools," she declared as the officer led her to the door. "Auderman McDonald is no d—good.

"Why don't you listen to someone who knows something about it?"

COMMITTEE NAMED

With peace restored to the meeting, the council appointed Aldermen W. H. Lembke, H. D. Wilson and T. H. Wilkinson as a committee of three to make a thorough inquiry into the Forum situation. The committee was instructed to call for expert opinions by architects and engineers, if such was deemed necessary.

Alderman L. D. McDonald declared he had not been satisfied with the Forum's construction, and believed the collapse was due to weak walls. He stated that six weeks ago he told the city building inspector that, in case of a heavy snowfall, the building should be closed.

UNEVEN LOAD

President Lock told the meeting the roof of the building had been swept clean of snow on Friday and Saturday, but that Sunday night's storm had piled the snow up heavily on the west side of the roof and the collapse had been caused by the uneven load.

An architect's report stated the collapse of the roof had caused the walls to break and added the belief there was no foundation for rumors the walls had collapsed first.

A request by the Exhibition Association for $70,000 to finance reconstruction was opposed by Mayor G. G. McGeer, who declared the council should not go any further until the affair had been completely investigated.

The total cost of the Forum building was said to have been $105,444.

Vancouver Council Hears Government's View On Debt Plans

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 24.—"I have already received advice from authoritative sources that the proposals already made public have resulted in a fall in price of city and provincial securities, and have even affected the Dominion credit," Premier T. D. Pattullo wrote in refusing to sponsor legislation giving Vancouver power to reduce interest on bonds by 50 per cent. The letter was filed by the civic finance committee yesterday.

The letter further read:

"In reply let me say that the government will not propose to the Legislature any amendment to the 'Vancouver Incorporation Act' so as to give the city the power of suspending payment of 50 per cent of the interest due, or accruing due, on its bonded indebtedness. On the other hand, if the city comes to an agreement with the bondholders and such agreement requires ratification, the government will be glad to submit necessary measures to the Legislature."

Federal Commission Is Told Of Position of Toronto Women Needleworkers

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—Lowering of piece work rates, open violations of the minimum wage law and great increase in part-time employment which is "ruining the security of the wage earner," were factors contributing to the "severe drop" in wages among women needleworkers in Toronto, Miss Winnifred Hutchinson, special investigator, told the royal commission on mass buying Wednesday.

She told of women's dress designers, earning in prosperous years $75 weekly, now earning the minimum wage of $12.50 weekly.

SHIP DRIVEN BACK TO PORT

Story of Battle With Gale Told By Ms. Annam's Crew at Vancouver

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 24.—When the great green mountains of the Pacific began to roll across his vessel's decks, leaving only her bridge and masts in the storm-tossed and spume-filled air, when the deckload of logs and timbers worked loose enough to begin to pound and create leaks in the steel deckhouses, when the stuffing of the rudder box came loose and water began to enter the ship in that way, Captain V. Kraglund, master of the Danish East Asiatic Ms. Annam, decided to turn back to port.

The Danish vessel left here late last week, fully laden for Oriental ports. Between seventy and eighty miles off Cape Flattery, she began to show signs of weakening under the thumping of the mountainous seas. It was a gale from the south.

The deckload of logs and lumber shows to-day the terrific force of the seas. Some are coated in heavy shredded fibre from the rubbing of the wooden pieces, and some are beginning to show they were working adrift. The seas, shifting the bound timbers, pounded them, thudding against the deckhouses, until leaks developed in the superstructure walls.

NO TIME TO REST

The men's quarters aft were flooded and made untenable, but this was not realized for a night. For that period all hands were on deck, participating in the last final battle to get safely back to port. As the seas permitted, they were trying to tighten deckload lashings, they were working pumps and even bailing out brushing water, and consequently had no time either to eat, drink, or think or rest.

Two men were hurt. The boatswain and an oiler were caught in one of the giant seas and slammed against the steel walls of a deckhouse. They were given emergency treatment on board, and on arriving here this morning were given medical attention. Both are badly bruised and strained.

Tarzan of the Apes

Tarzan's hatred overcame his unutterable loneliness. He lowered Kulonga's body and viewed the savage village, wondering over many features of this new, strange life. A woman directly beneath him stood over a small antelope, dragging across him the hunting substance. He knew that this was the deadly stuff that killed.

Tarzan wrested some of these little death-dealing arrows. He heard a wild cry from across the clearing, and saw an exulting black warrior climbing through the tree in which he had killed Kulonga, the mother of his ape mother, Kala. The hideer was shouting, waving his spear and pointing.

The village was in an uproar instantly. Armed men ranged south toward the tree-lined century. Tarzan, of the Apes heard they had found the body of his victim. Quickly he dropped into the new deserted village and gathered some arrows. Entering a hut by first, he saw many weapons and clubs.

Tarzan made a pile of the hideous clubs. On the top shall he fastened the head-dress of Kulonga, the chief's dead son. Then he heard a mighty, walking and long, resounded heralds. Quickly he disappeared into the village above, thinking over the nothing children, after securing a supply of poisonous arrows.

The natives filed up the street, noticing Kulonga's body, taking it to the very hut in which Tarzan wrought his depredations. They came and to wild jabbering exclamation. The witchmen discussion filled their hearts with terror. They conjured in their poor broken only the most frightful superstitious explanations.

The Gumps

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX:—I am a business woman of twenty-nine. Have a good position and love my work. Cannot visualize life outside of an office. I suppose every woman should look forward to marrying, but the thought of it leaves me with a sense of slavery—a complete loss of freedom. A man I like but do not love has asked me to marry him and I do not know what to do. He makes $200 a month, but has to support his mother. My mother is dependent upon me also and I have enjoyed our nice little apartment and provided her with comforts and pleasures that she has never had before. The man is opposed to a woman working after marriage, so I would be unable to supplement our income. Another complication is that there was a man I loved horribly. I had to give him up because he was a drunkard, but I still miss him and still think of him. Feeling as I do about this man and about the pleasure I derive from the material things that I have just lately made enough to enjoy and about our two mothers, do you think my marriage with the first man would work out happily?

BEWILDERED.

Answer:

I certainly cannot see how any marriage that was so handicapped as yours to this man would be could possibly be successful. There are innumerable reasons why you should not marry him and not one reason in its favor.

To begin with, you are not only not in love with this man, but you are in love with another man. That alone would be a sufficient bar to your union. It takes a lot of love to enable a woman to be a good wife, because even the best of husbands have faults and ways and little peculiarities that she has to put up with and to which she has to adjust herself. Of course, it is just as much a husband's business to adapt himself to his wife and to change his habits and tastes and points of view to suit her, but men simply don't do it. In every house where there is peace and harmony it is the wife who has made herself over to suit her husband.

And marriage is full of sacrifices for every woman. It is full of work and worries, and whether these are worth while to her or not depends altogether upon how much she thinks of her husband.

Furthermore, don't delude yourself into thinking that marrying one man will make you forget another. It will not. Marriage doesn't extinguish the fire of an old passion. It merely fans it into a fiercer flame. Every minute of every day you would be comparing the husband to whom you are indifferent with the lover whose every touch thrilled you, and the more you realize you have lost him, the more you will long for him. It is dangerous for any woman to marry a man she isn't in love with. It is suicidal for her to marry one man when she is in love with another. And it is giving the man she does marry a rotten deal.

And, anyway, the woman who prefers office work to home work and who looks upon marriage as slavery should stay single. Nature intended her for a girl bachelor instead of a wife. A woman should regard her home as a heaven, not a jail.

Then the financial side of the situation is to be considered. On $200 a month your friend can support himself and his mother in comfort, but when he has to support you and your mother also it will be grinding poverty. It would mean that all of you would have to pinch and scrimp and do without all the little luxuries to which you are accustomed, and unless you are four angels that would get upon your nerves and you would quarrel like cats and dogs. Particularly would the man resent having to support your mother and that would not add to the peace of the situation.

The only thing that would justify such a reckless marriage would be your being so madly in love with him that you would throw caution to the winds. As you have not this excuse for it, don't make such a foolhardy marriage.

There is a lot of peace and comfort in being single when you have a good job and a nice home and the knowledge that you are making your mother's old age happy and easy.

DEAR MISS DIX:—I am very anxious to make nursing my career, but my family object to it. They insist on my taking a business course instead. Which stands higher, an a profession, nursing or being a business woman? Will nursing prevent me from making a desirable match?

Answer:

Nursing is a vocation as well as an avocation, and when a girl feels a call to it no one should try to prevent her from doing the work that God intended her to do. No profession is nobler. None calls for higher attributes of heart and head. For the nurse must have not only intelligence and skill, she must have initiative and courage and patience and sympathy and a devotion to her work that makes her willing to perform all the unpleasant tasks that are a part of her routine.

No women do more good in the world and are of greater service to humanity than trained nurses, and it seems almost ridiculous to ask in what esteem they are held. Those of us who have had them watch over us through long spells of sickness, who have known how tender and patient and faithful they can be, who have had them work over us for hours on end to ease our sufferings and felt their strong hands pull us back from the very gates of death, don't think of them as women following a respectable, gainful occupation. We think of them as ministering angels.

And don't worry about nursing being a bar to your making a good match. Look about you and see how well nurses marry. Some of the wealthiest and most prominent society women that you know were nurses.

In fact, a trained nurse once said to me that no other women in the world had such a chance to marry as a trained nurse did, because she could always marry either the doctor or the patient.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX:—How can you keep a wife at home who has an itch for being on Main Street? I am well-to-do and able to support my wife in comfort, but she insists on working in a store where she doesn't make carfare, although she is fifty-eight years old. For thirty-seven years I have gotten up every morning and cooked my breakfast and prepared my lunch and washed the dishes and gone to work leaving her in bed. Now I am in my row's end and have stood this as long as I can.

M. R.

Answer:

You are thirty-seven years too late in asking advice. You can't change a woman who is your wife's age. She is too set in her ways.

You will just have to realize that there are some women who are not domestic in their tastes. Not every woman likes to stay at home any more than every man does, and not every woman is a born cook any more than every man is a born carpenter. There are women with wandering feet who just have to be out where there is life and movement and excitement, and you have to be thankful that yours can take out her wanderlust on Main Street instead of the primrose path.

Uncle Wiggily's Safety Hole

By HOWARD R. GARIS

When Baby Bunty and all the other bunny children in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow were ready for school one morning, Nurse Jane Fussy Wussy said to Mr. Longears:

"Aren't you going to hop along with them to teach them more about manners?"

"Not this morning," answered the rabbit gentleman. "So far I have taught my pupils how to smell, hear and see danger. I don't want to give them too many lessons at once. They can very well take care of themselves in the woods and fields quite well. So I am going to hop by myself this morning and think for awhile."

"Rather!" asked his wife who looked to make sure Baby Bunty had her ear ribbon nicely tied. Rabbit girls wear ear ribbons instead of hair ribbons, as I am sure you know. "What sort of hole are you going to look for, Wiggy?"

"Safety holes, my dear," answered the learned rabbit. "I will tell you about them when I come back. Besides finding a safety hole, I may also find an adventure."

HE LOOKED EVERYWHERE

Waiting until the bunny children were safely on their way to the School Tree behind which the Jimmy Jumps were the teacher, Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods with his bright eyes he looked here and there for holes—holes in the ground, holes under rocks or stones, holes in trees, holes in the water, holes in the air, holes in the sky, holes that had come from the trees but which had fallen to the ground and had rotted away.

"There are many safety holes here," said Uncle Wiggily to his ear, a little pink pointed ear, which, then for the rabbits to hear.

Mr. Longears hopped carefully around so he would know how to find his safety hole again when he needed it in a hurry. What the rabbit gentleman was doing was finding as many holes as he could on the road to the Lady Bugs Teacher's school. Then he could show the bunny boys and girls where their holes could be found.

"There," said Mr. Longears to himself as he saw another hole beneath a big rock. "Baby Bunty and the others can hop down into those safety holes and hide when they hear the bang to run away from it."

That is why Uncle Wiggily wanted to find as many safety holes as he could. He knew that many times when his little bunnies might need a hole or an door, or be had hopped down, they would be in a chance to run away before danger could be upon them.

"I'm then they must hide in a safety hole," said Uncle Wiggily as he hopped along. "If they hide in a hole the Fox, the Wolf or the Bob Cat cannot so easily find them."

DANGER SIGNS

So Uncle Wiggily hopped along until he had found forty-seven safety holes in the woods and fields—enough for each of his rabbit children and Baby Bunty also. Then, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily heard danger. He smelled danger, he felt danger. It was the Bob Cat coming toward him.

"Oh, I must find a safety hole for myself!" said Mr. Longears. He quickly hopped over and over a fine hole beneath a big stump, but the Bob Cat saw the rabbit hole there.

"Why, I'll get inside Wiggily," thought the Bob Cat. But as he hopped over the top of the hole he heard a voice from down there. Then Uncle Wiggily peered up a pair of dark, round, small eyes and saw they belonged to the Bob Cat's eyes.

"Go away, go away! I can't hear!" cried the Bob Cat's voice.

"Then you can't get out!" shouted Uncle Wiggily. Jumping out of the safety hole in the stump, the bunny gentleman hopped away. The Bob Cat jumped out and chased the rabbit for a long way in the woods. But Uncle Wiggily knew the woods and fields and hid in a safe place. The Bob Cat lost the rabbit's trail.

Britten Commodore Of Combined Fleets

With Three More Years of Service Before Retirement Titled Skipper Is Expected to Command Superliner Queen Mary On Her Maiden Voyage

Capt. Sir Edgar T. Britten, commander of the Cunard liner Berengaria, who has just been appointed commodore of the Cunard-White Star fleet, will probably be the first commander of the new superliner Queen Mary when she enters the Southampton-New York service in June next year.

Sir Edgar was to have retired last November, having reached the retiring age of sixty, but the company directors decided that he should be retained on the active list until he reaches the age of sixty-three years. As the senior officer of the fleet, Sir Edgar will be in line for the command of the Queen Mary.

When he reached Southampton this week the commodore flew his burgee at the main truck of the Berengaria. The burgee is a red pennant with two tails, centred by a golden lion.

To ease congestion in the promotion of officers in the deck department of the Cunard Company, the directors decided before the merger went into effect that the captains should be retired at sixty, have half pay for three years more and then have the regular pension.

When the matter came up last fall before the new board of directors, those on the White Star side objected to paying the three years' half pay to the retired Cunard captains, so it was decided to keep them on to the former age limit of sixty-three. Under present conditions the White Star commanders retire at sixty and the Cunard captains at sixty-three. The former receive considerably more pay than the Cunard commanders.

Capt. Reginald V. Peel, commodore of the Royal Naval Reserve, arrived in New York last week in command of the Olympic for the first time, after having commanded the Mauretania for several years. He was to have relieved Sir Edgar on the Berengaria last November and would have been commodore of the fleet after Capt. R. O. Malin of the Samaria retired on December 31.

Adelaide Here For Repairs

C.P.R. Boat Sustains Stem Damage In Collision With Barge at Vancouver

The steamer Adelaide of the C.P.R. coastwise fleet arrived in Victoria at 8 o'clock this morning to have slight repairs made following a mishap last night in Vancouver harbor.

In a heavy transhorm, with poor visibility, the Princess Adelaide, outbound from Vancouver for Prince Rupert, was in collision with a barge towed by the tug Rita Mae. A glancing blow was struck, the Princess Adelaide sustaining slight stem damage, which will necessitate her undergoing repairs at Esquimalt. The barge was undamaged, it is reported, and proceeded in tow of the Rita Mae.

Plying regularly in the Prince Rupert and northern B.C. coast service, the Princess Adelaide's sailing last night from Vancouver was cancelled.

Repairs will be completed as quickly as possible, and the vessel will resume her weekly schedule out of Vancouver next Wednesday, Capt. R. W. McMurray, manager of the B.C. Coast Steamship Service, stated to-day.

The repair contract is being handled by Yarrows Limited.

BUSINESS FOR PACIFIC COAST

Tonnage Passing Through Panama Canal Shows Commercial Activity Increasing

San Francisco, Jan. 24.—Evidence of greater commercial activity for the Pacific Coast came to hand to-day from the Panama Canal.

The official records of canal traffic showed the cargoes sent eastward through the canal from Pacific ports were about 10 per cent heavier for 1934 than for 1933.

Westbound traffic to Pacific ports was heavier too, but the gain was smaller, amounting to about 4 per cent.

Total intercoastal traffic originating at California, Washington and Oregon ports and moving through the canal was 6,562,411 tons for 1934, and 5,957,207 tons in 1933.

Westbound tonnage consigned to Pacific ports was 1,898,755 tons in 1934, and 1,801,496 in 1933.

December figures failed to match the record of the year as a whole, largely because of the decline in oil shipments, as contracts expired on the completion of the enormous deliveries of California fuel oil made on the Atlantic seaboard. Total December eastbound traffic was 517,356 tons, compared with 597,503 in December, 1933. December also declined from November's 580,916 tons of eastbound freight.

Shipments of petroleum declined to a reported 19,000 tons in December, from 209,515 tons in November, and 268,007 tons in December of 1933.

Lumber shipments eastward through the canal showed a big December rise, totaling 120,117 tons, compared with 67,772 in November and 78,976 in December, 1933. The year's lumber traffic, however, was about 20 per cent short of 1933, with 910,688 tons compared with 1,269,209.

On the other hand petroleum shipments for the year gained what lumber lost, with 5,260,017 tons moving eastward, compared with 2,561,701 in 1933.

The canal's westbound traffic in December was 102,520 tons. This was a good gain from a year ago, when the tonnage was 157,375. November westbound traffic, largely of manufactured goods for Pacific Coast distribution, totaled 170,960 tons.

Shipwrecked Crew Sails For Japan

Capt. K. Iwata and Men of Lost Ss. Hokuman Maru Passing Victoria To-day On Board N.Y.K. Motorliner Hiye Maru, Bound For Yokohama

Capt. Kohei Iwata and the officers and crew of the wrecked Japanese freighter Hokuman Maru, who were rescued by the Ss. President Jackson on Monday 150 miles off Vancouver Island, sailed from Vancouver at noon to-day aboard the N.Y.K. motor liner Hiye Maru, according to advices received by Harry Clark, Victoria agent for the Great Northern Railway and Nippon Yusen Kaisha.

The shipwrecked party comprises forty-five men, all of whom are happy at the thought of returning safely to their homes, after all had been nearly lost.

The Japanese sailors left Seattle on the Hiye Maru at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Vancouver, where the ship took on additional passengers and freight before clearing to-day for the Orient.

WILL VIEW SCENE

The Hiye Maru will pass to sea from Victoria by nightfall and when the Hokuman Maru's crew awake to-morrow morning they will be in the vicinity of their terrible experience.

Eagerly they will scan the surface of the ocean and reflect upon what might have happened.

They have not forgotten, and will never forget, Capt. M. M. Jensen, master of the President Jackson, and Chief Officer Leonard Bridge and Second Officer E. D. Geddes and the men who manned the two lifeboats which took them off the sinking ship.

Capt. Iwata showed his gratitude to Capt. Jensen by wrapping his arms about him and breaking into sobs. The rest of the crew stood mutely by.

On his arrival in Japan, the Hokuman Maru's skipper will have to give an accounting of the disaster to his owners, the Yamashita Shipping Company.

After searching for any trace of the ill-fated Hokuman Maru, the United States cutter Chelan has returned to Seattle. The Japanese ship is believed to have foundered shortly after the President Jackson left the scene Monday with the survivors.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies as applied to sore and painful Piles are only local in effect and do not reach to true circulatory cause?

Why Piles may "come back" even after a first removal by cutting?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts thicken?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt, known as HEM-ROID and sold with your money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by relieving congested circulation and helps to heal and restore the sore surfaces.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that MacFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores and other good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets to-day—take them as directed—then if not completely satisfied with results—your money back. (Advt.)
